Mac-Donald Asks Coordinated Action As Conference Opens

World Economic Conference Opens Today in London With Delegates From 66 Nations in Attendance—War Debts Brought to Light in Surprise Move by British Prime Minister—Adjourn Until Tuesday.

Conference Hall, London, June 12 (AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald opened the World Economic Conference today with an emphatic call for coordinated international action to put an end to the depression which has cost 30,000,000 workers their jobs and has cut the value of international trade in two.

Delegates from 66 nations, described by the British Prime Minister as perhaps the greatest assemblage of international authority ever held, heard the speech.

Springing a surprise which appeared unwelcome in some quarters, Mr. MacDonald brought up the delicate subject of the war debts, declaring that they must be dealt with immediately. He admitted the conference was not so constituted that it could handle the problem, but he emphasized his belief that something must be done about the debts "before every obstacle to general recovery has been removed."

The American delegation had no warning that this controversial subject was being raised, and some feeling was evident among the United States delegates that it was not in good taste and might stiffen sentiment in the United States against debt revision.

The Americans expressed the opinion, however, that Mr. MacDonald was talking for home consumption.

As the meeting was adjourning until tomorrow it was predicted that stabilization of the major currencies within a wide range would be the first definite accomplishment of the conference.

High financial authorities close to the British delegation expressed this expectation, basing it on a reported agreement earlier in the day among American, British and French representatives who met at the British treasury.

Clinic Schedule At Benedictine Hospital

The first clinic to be held at the Benedictine Hospital this week will be the clinic for the Diseases of the Stomach, which will be held on Wednesday morning, June 14, from 10 to 12 o'clock. The diagnosis and treatment of this clinic will be in charge of several members of the staff.

The Gynecological clinic will be held Thursday afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock.

The Pediatric Clinic will be held on Friday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock. All children brought to this clinic will receive medical care.

Any information regarding the above clinics may be obtained by communicating with the Benedictine Hospital either by letter or phone. Telephone 2500.

NO FARM BUREAU PICNIC WILL BE HELD THIS YEAR.

At a special meeting of the combined boards of directors of the Farm and Home Bureau Association, which includes the 4-H Club department, on Saturday night, it was decided to cancel the regular picnic usually held at Forsyth Park in Kingston this year. Millard Davis, president of the association, presided. C. C. DuMond, president of the Farm Bureau; Mrs. H. M. Eppes, chairman of the Home Bureau, and other members of the boards of directors were also present. Pratt Boice, chairman of the 4-H Clubs, was unavoidably absent.

The chief reason for this action was to cooperate with the Ulster County Agricultural Society in holding the annual exhibit and field day at the new state armory on August 23, 24 and 25. If the plans can be made satisfactorily, a Farm and Home Bureau day will be held in connection with the exhibit, to take the place of the picnic. Complete plans will be announced later.

FREEMAN IMPROVES ITS SERVICE TO KRIPPLEBUSH

Residents of Kripplebush will be able to get their copy of The Freeman the same afternoon by calling at the store of Granville Van Demark in that village. This change in the delivery service of the paper will take effect with the issue of Wednesday, June 14, and is in keeping with The Freeman's policy of endeavoring to have the paper reach the subscriber the same day wherever it is possible to do so. The papers will leave Kingston on the High Falls-Kingston bus operated by the Eagle Bus Line, Inc., which goes through Kripplebush. Each paper will bear the subscriber's name as heretofore and any Freeman subscriber living in that section who would like to have his copy of the paper left at Mr. Van Demark's store can do so by notifying the circulation department of The Freeman.

Sergeant Cunningham Returns to His Duties

Popular Member of Troop C Stationed in Ulster County, Returns to Duties After Accident Several Weeks Ago.

Sergeant James J. Cunningham of "C" Troop, New York State Troopers, is again back on the job having recovered from a severe injury which he suffered several weeks ago when he slipped on a patch of ice while entering his car. Injuries to his back confined him to the Kingston Hospital for several weeks under the care of Dr. Joseph Jacobson and later he was confined to his home at Fish Creek. He had recovered sufficiently to be about his home and visit Kingston the past two or three weeks but it was not until last week that Dr. Jacobson considered his injuries sufficiently healed to permit him to return to duty.

Last week Sergeant Cunningham visited Troop headquarters at Sidney and reported to Captain Fox and was assigned to his old territory in Ulster county. Although practically recovered from the effects of his injury he will be required to report to Dr. Jacobson from time to time for further examination and treatment. Sergeant Cunningham will be welcomed back to duty by his many friends in this locality. His service in this county covers a period of many years and during that time he has become very familiar with the territory and has gained widespread confidence among the residents of the county. One of the oldest members of the Troop in point of service the Sergeant enjoys the complete confidence of his superior officers and his record for service in the State Constabulary is one of the best. Courageous, conscientious and dependable, Sergeant Jim Cunningham is a model police officer.

Sergeant Jim Cunningham and Sergeant Jack Cunningham, his twin brother, have both been members of the State Police for over seventeen years and during that time both have measured up to the high standard which is demanded of all members of the State Troopers. Sergeant Jim has seen much of his service in Ulster county and his brother, Jack, has been stationed most of the time in the neighborhood of Cooperstown, both members of the "C" Troop.

Both of the Cunningham boys enjoy a most excellent record not only as members of the State Troopers, but back in Glens Falls, their old home town, where they were employed before joining with the Troopers.

Jersey Woman Held In Accident Case

Charlotte Johnson, 33, of 241 Bergen Pike, Ridgefield Park, N. J., was committed to the Ulster county jail Sunday morning to await a hearing at 8 p. m. today before Justice R. Tiller of West Hurley, on a charge of reckless driving.

The arrest was a result of a collision about 2 o'clock Sunday morning between the car driven by Mrs. Johnson and a Pontiac coach driven by Alexander Klementis of Zena. The accident happened between the railroad bridge at West Hurley and the Zena road. The Johnson car was being driven towards West Hurley at the time, and the Klementis car was coming towards Kingston and both were considerably damaged.

With Klementis were his sister, Julia Klementis, Walter and Gertrude Madden and Marcus Smith of Stony Hollow and Ray Van Valkenburgh of Woodstock, R. D. Mrs. Johnson was accompanied by a man who gave his name as Peter Calles of 208 Moore street, Hackensack, N. J.

Deputy Clayton Vredenburgh of the sheriff's office investigated the affair and also called Troopers Coons and Boeninger. On complaint of Klementis, who charged Mrs. Johnson was driving on the wrong side of the road, she was arrested and taken before Justice Tiller, where she demanded a hearing and the case was set down for this evening.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, June 12 (AP).—Treasury receipts for June 9 were $9,580,905.76; expenditures $22,172,436.46; balance $279,797,114.94. Customs duties for 9 days of June were $6,715,143.16.

Davis Pleads Not Guilty

New York, June 12 (AP).—United States Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania pleaded "not guilty" to a new indictment in the Moose lottery case today. Trial date was set tentatively for July 10.

Honor Local 4-H Club Organizer by Award Of Payne Scholarship

Barnard D. Joy, Who Organized and Leads Ulster County 4-H Club Work, Will Go to Washington to Study—Two Chosen from Entire Country.

BARNARD D. JOY

Barnard D. Joy, who organized the 4-H Club work in Ulster county and has since been its leader, with such outstanding success that, among other qualifications it brought him the honor of being one of two selected from the entire United States for a nine months scholarship in the Department of Agriculture at Washington, will leave to take up his studies in Washington October 1. He will take as the subject for his thesis, "Improving programs of local 4-H Clubs."

During Mr. Joy's absence the 4-H Club work in Ulster county will be in charge of Miss Margaret Latimer, whose home is in South Dakota and who is just completing a nine months course in Washington, having last year been awarded one of the Payne scholarships. Miss Latimer was selected as acting agent at a meeting of the executive board of the Ulster county 4-H Clubs held at the 4-H Camp at Glenerie Saturday. She will take up her duties October 1.

Had Qualifications.

The scholarship won by Mr. Joy is one of two offered in the United States each year by the Payne Fund and is valued at $1,000. Applicants must have had four years' experience in 4-H Club work and must be college graduates, with courses in agriculture or home economics work. Selection is based on 4-H Club and college record, experience, leadership ability and character. The 4-H Club office in each state selects two candidates and from the possible 96 thus selected, two, a young man and a young woman, are chosen by a committee representing the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Payne Fund.

Mr. Joy's experience in 4-H Club work dates back to his boyhood days in Ashland, Oregon, where at the age of 12 he became a member of the local club. As such he won the national garden championship, won first in the Oregon dairy record keeping contest and was a member of the team that won the state judging contest in 1923. Following his graduation from the Ashland High School he continued his interest in the work as a student in Oregon State College. He was a member of the College 4-H Club, one of the organizers in his college of the 4-H honor fraternity known as Mu Beta Beta, and was first secretary of the national organization of that society. Among other college activities he was a member for four years of the college debating team and also took an interest in tennis. He finished his college work in December, 1929, graduating in June, 1930, with the degree of B. S.

Came Here In 1930

Mr. Joy came to Ulster county in January, 1930 and took up the work of organizing 4-H Clubs in this county. He has had flattering success and today there are 85 clubs, representing some 35 communities, with a total membership of 693. One outstanding feature of the work has been the conduct of week-end camps and last year these camps had an attendance of 225, representing about 40 per cent of the total membership. Ulster county is the only one in the state conducting these week-end camps.

Active and popular socially since coming to Kingston, Mr. Joy is a member of the Kiwanis and Mendelssohn Clubs, as well as the Grange and Farm Bureau Association. He is also a member of the Sigma Phi Epsilon and other Greek letter college fraternities.

On October 11, 1930, Mr. Joy was united in marriage to Miss Ruth Boeve, daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Lucas Boeve. Mrs. Joy will accompany him to Washington.

CITY ASSESSOR LOSES HIS GOAT; KILLED BY A DOG.

City Assessor William B. Martin has lost his goat. No, it was not due to hot weather but a police dog entered the yard of his home on Taylor street and killed the animal Saturday afternoon. Mr. Martin kept the goat to furnish milk to carry out a prescribed diet for his daughter. The dog was later captured by Officers Fitzgerald and Burger and taken to the police garage, where it will be kept until the matter is disposed of. The owner of the dog was notified to appear at the city hall today.

Commission Will Probe Utilities

Albany, N. Y., June 12 (AP).—The Public Service Commission in its efforts to get lower electric light and gas rates for New York consumers today prepared to probe thoroughly the financial condition of approximately 100 utility companies in the state.

The commission was spurred on by results of the first hearing last Thursday on profits of the first seven companies investigated. Six of these have continued to pay sizeable dividends on common stock during the last three years, the commission found. One company was found to have paid as high as 52 per cent to its common stock holders in 1925.

The commission has announced that companies whose financial condition warrants will be required to establish emergency lower rates.

Rally of 300 Scouts At Mountain Camp

Over 300 Scouts from various parts of Ulster and Greene counties enjoyed the camp rally at the Scout summer camp last Saturday.

Scouts began arriving at camp shortly after 9 o'clock and by 10:30 some 300 of them had assembled for the day's activities. During the morning the campers were divided into two teams and enjoyed games. From 10:30 to 11:30 when the call came for the morning swim there was no delay getting into the camp swimming pool. The water was warm and everybody enjoyed this to the fullest.

Following the swim came a period for eats. Some of the more ambitious troops prepared cooking fires while others brought their lunch all prepared. After dinner came a short gathering in a camp fire circle where a few campfire games were enjoyed and Scout Executive Wright explained many features of the camp and answered many questions.

From 2 to 3:30 the camp was again divided into two teams for games and contests. The afternoon swim came at 3:30 and no one had any desire to leave the swimming hole when the "All Out" whistle came.

Every Scout present had an exceptionally fine time and enjoyed the contest games and swim, and are now looking forward to the opening of the camp in July. Many more registrations have been received into the Council Office and are still coming in every day.

Many Troop Committeemen and parents of the boys enjoyed the outing at the camp and expressed themselves well pleased with the arrangements and with the entire outlay of the camp.

Goldman's Style Show At Broadway Theatre

Tonight and tomorrow night Bernard Goldman, of Goldman's Style Shop, 24 Broadway, will hold a revue at the Broadway Theatre of summer fashions for sport, street, afternoon, evening and bridal wear. Mr. Goldman, who has devoted many years to the study of costume designing and color, has promised to exhibit some unusually smart, high-style garments. As models, Mr. Goldman has secured the following: The Misses Janet Evans, Margaret Falvey, Frances Finn, Kitty Fogarty, Lillian Gallagher, Marie Ketterer, Winifred McCutcheon, Elizabeth Nee, Alice Pieper, Marie Shea, Helen Shields and Mary Rourke.

PRODUCE BOOK TO AID PLAN TO SELL MORE MILK.

Albany, N. Y., June 12 (AP).—Three billion copies or a gay-looking booklet telling how to make 20 different "snappy milk drinks for the ol' summer time," were distributed by the Department of Agriculture and Markets today as part of its plan to get New York residents to drink more milk. The department hopes the little booklet, printed in green ink on yellow paper, will help solve the milk surplus problem now troubling the dairying industry.

"Old Fashioned," "Tumble Tom," "Deep River," "Alice in Wonderland" and "Punch and Judy" are a few of the old drinks with new names recommended in the booklet to patrons of soda fountains and dairy stores. Lest the Old Fashioned" be confused with the pre-prohibition cocktail, it should be said that as described in the pamphlet it contains only milk, an egg, a teaspoon of vanilla and some nutmeg or cinnamon.

Killed In Attempt to Board Train

Scarsdale, N. Y., June 12 (AP).—Charles W. Whitehair, Cleveland insurance man, was killed today attempting to board a commuters' train which had already started out of the station. Whitehair, who was 45 years old and connected with the Cleveland Insurance firm of George W. Talkes, Inc., had been a week-end guest of Birge W. Kinne of Pleasantville, who was critically injured when Whitehair was killed.

Rescue Block Party.

Rescue Hook and Ladder Company will hold a block party this evening on Abeel street, between Wurts and Hone streets. The music for dancing will be furnished by the Ambassador orchestra, and the general public is invited. If stormy it will be held the next fair evening.

85 4-H Club Girls At Week-end Camp, Study On Furniture Project

Mrs. Nancy Roman of Cornell University Instructs Young Women in Refinishing of Old Furniture—Buffet Supper Served to Guests—Those Present.

The 85 older 4-H Girls, local leaders, and staff members who were at the 4-H Camp had the pleasure of entertaining a large number of guests at a buffet supper held at the camp, Saturday, June 10. The girls put on a program which included musical numbers, short talks about their work, baseball game, and campfire program. During the week-end the girls had studied the refinishing of old furniture under the direction of Mrs. Nancy Roman, Cornell University. An exhibit was prepared that included furniture in various stages of the refinishing project.

The guests at the buffet supper which was served from 6 to 7 p. m. included Millard Davis, Kerhonkson, president of the Farm and Home Bureau Association; Mrs. H. M. Eppes, Accord, chairman of the Home Bureau Department; C. C. DuMond, Ulster Park, chairman of the Farm Bureau Department; Pratt Boice, Lake Katrine, chairman of the 4-H Club Department; H. H. Tozier, Jr., Dutchess County 4-H Club Agent; B. C. Vanlingen, superintendent of Kingston Schools; Harry Halverson, vice-president of Kiwanis Club; Fred DuBois, New Paltz, president of the Ulster County Agricultural Society; Dr. Raymond S. Crispell, who gave the 4-H Health examinations. Many of the Board of Directors of the Farm and Home Bureau Association were present, and a large number of other 4-H Club friends in Ulster county. Families of the guests were entertained also.

The program which was given gave the guests a picture of the ability of 4-H Club members to entertain and the educational opportunities offered by 4-H Club work. The program was started with a style show of club uniforms which was followed by the introduction of guests. Myron L. Evans of Ithaca, a former 4-H Club agent gave a short talk on some of the advantages offered by the work.

The program by the girls was started when Marjorie Morehouse of Lake Katrine told about what her club had done in the past four years.

Margaret DuMond, Ulster Park, told about her trip, last June, to the State 4-H Club Congress at Ithaca. Grace Hasbrouck, New Paltz, related her experiences at the New York State Fair last September. Sarah Boice, Lake Katrine, State 4-H Health Champion, told about her trip to National 4-H Club Congress at Chicago.

Two girls from outside of Ulster county told about more advanced achievement, Miss Marion Harris who has been a 4-H Club girl in Dutchess county for eight years, told about her trip to National Club Camp, Washington, D. C.

The highest award for which a 4-H Club member or former 4-H Club member may compete is the National 4-H Fellowship given by the Payne Fund. Miss Margaret Latimer, of South Dakota, who holds this fellowship at the present time, told of some of her activities during her stay during the past eight months in Washington, D. C.

Musical numbers were especially appreciated. Ruby Thorpe and Ethel Styles of Cottekill sang a duet and later in the program Betty Kent, Rifton, and Gladys Klothe, Flatbush, sang also. A special feature was a Japancse duet in costume, given by Betty and Carolyn Ryder of Flatbush, both of whom have spent many years in Japan.

The fife trio composed of Doris and John Wiren and Emily Buzdygan of Rifton played and sang Czecho-Slovankian and Russian folk songs that were accompanied by J. Paul Wiren also of Rifton. One of the most popular features were the cowboy and love songs of Bob Aronstam, who accompanied himself with a Hawaiian guitar.

Mrs. Nancy M. Roman, room improvement specialist of Cornell University, was the principal instructor at the camp Saturday. The instruction given by Mrs. Roman included "What Furniture is Worth Refinishing," "Instruction in Removing Old Finish," "Woods Worth Refinishing in Natural State" was given by Mrs. Roman. Each girl practiced the instruction that she was given.

Instruction and practice in presenting wood for the finish was given by Mr. Joy. Craft work consisting of making small pocketbooks and brushes was given by Mr. Joy and Miss Gippert.

The buffet supper was prepared by Mrs. Joy, camp dietitian.

For camp activities the girls were divided into three tribes: Sarah Boice, Lake Katrine, was chief of the Mohawks; Ethel Eckert, Rifton, of the Senecas, and Marjorie Morehouse, Lake Katrine, of the Black Hawks.

The camp staff included besides Mrs. Roman, Mr. Joy, camp director, Harvey Sarles, swimming instructor; Mrs. Joy, dietitian; Miss Gippert, craft work; Dr. Crispell, health examiner; Dr. George Weber, who gave tuberculin tests; Miss Dorothy Powell, Miss Latimer and Mr. Aronstam.

The local leaders who attended camp were: Mrs. Hazel Freer, Cottekill; Mrs. William Limbacher, Sawkill; Mrs. Eugene Terwilliger, Shawangunk; Miss Anna Devine, Rifton; Mrs. Hugh Furguson, Lake Katrine; Ann DuBois, New Paltz; Mrs. Wil-

Hoffmann Brewery To Be Rebuilt By Local Group

The Kingston Brewing Corporation Chartered and Organized with Charles H. Bunn of Ulster Park as President—Brewery to Have 30,000 Barrel Capacity—Building Not Used for Brewery for a Long Time.

The Kingston Brewing Corporation has just been chartered by the state of New York and has taken over the old Hoffmann brewery property on Hone street, which has not been used for brewing beer for a number of years, and plan to turn it into a new, modern and up-to-date brewery. Plans include a cold storage plant to be operated in connection with the brewery.

Charles H. Bunn, president of the new corporation, is the moving spirit behind the new enterprise, and will serve as general manager of the corporation. Mr. Bunn was formerly prominently connected with the brewing industry in Newark, N. J. He supervised the construction of the famous James R. Hensler ale brewery of that city, and served as treasurer and general manager until his retirement prior to coming to Ulster county. Mr. Bunn was also formerly at the head of the chain of Bunn Brothers cafeterias in New York city.

The other officer of the corporation is Andrew N. Schrader as secretary and treasurer. The vice president is to be selected later. Directors are to number five and the three already selected to serve are E. J. Dempsey, Dr. H. L. Van Nostrand and Mr. Bunn.

Mr. Bunn when seen at his home in Ulster Park stated he had sold his interest in the Hensler brewery when it became apparent that prohibition would eventually come, but that now beer is again legal and sure to remain so and it presented the opportunity here in Kingston to bring him out of retirement and back into harness.

Brewery to be Overhauled.

Mr. Bunn chuckled when he recalled how other interests in searching for suitable locations and plants which could be readily re-converted into breweries had completely overlooked the possibilities of the Hoffmann property. He said that when he first inspected the plant last year with a view of acquiring it for cold storage purposes, he was surprised by what he found in the construction of the main building and he sent for representatives of an engineering concern in New York specializing in refrigeration to make an examination of the property.

The engineers, he said, agreed that the building represented a remarkable example of the massive construction typical of the middle of the last century.

Mr. Bunn said that it was estimated that it would cost approximately $125,000 to duplicate such construction today and stated that the expenditure of a surprisingly small sum will put the building in perfect repair, ready for the installation of equipment and machinery.

30,000 Barrel Capacity.

The new corporation plans to install equipment permitting an annual output of 30,000 barrels of lager beer, with provisions made in the interior arrangement and reconstruction which will enable the initial capacity to be more than doubled at a minimum additional expense.

Mr. Bunn said that based upon the average consumption of beer in the United States before prohibition, it is estimated that there exists a potential market within easy delivery distance of Kingston of between 175,000 and 200,000 barrels per year.

Work for Unemployed

The corporation plans to use local contractors and employ local labor wherever possible during construction and hopes to secure its operating personnel in this vicinity as well. It is the intention, Mr. Bunn said, to make the new brewery a local enterprise in every way.

The employment of about 25 to 30 men will be necessary when the plant is in full operation.

In order to take advantage of the large available storage space not immediately needed for the brewery, plans include modern facilities for the storage of fruits, vegetables and other perishable commodities.

To Open Offices

Temporary offices are to be occupied in the Opera House Building at Fair and John streets by the corporation. Later all activities will be conducted from the brewery.

The Hoffman brewery was created more than half a century ago by Jacob Hoffmann, one of the leading brewers in New York city, to start his son, the late Philip Hoffman, in business. The young man, recently married, took up his residence in Kingston and conducted the business under The Oriental Brewery successfully for a number of years until on the death of his father he returned to New York. The Oriental Brewery was used as a bottling works and local outlet for the Jacob Hoffman Brewing Company's "Monopol" beer for a number of years but of late has been idle. When erected, it was a model plant and very up to date.

Holy Cross Social.

The lawn festival at Holy Cross parish house, 24 Pine Grove avenue, will be held Wednesday evening, June 14, from 5 to 8 o'clock.

Constable Watzka Only Drove Auto

Told Judge Cullotan This Morning That Cave Boy Went With Komasa Voluntarily—Case Adjourned to Saturday—Other Cases in Police Court.

The kidnaping scare on North Front street last Friday afternoon which led to the arrest of William Komasa of 65 Third avenue and his arraignment in police court Saturday morning at which time he was fined $10 on a charge of assault in teh third degree in grabbing William Cave, 11, of North Front street, and placing him in a car and driving away with the boy, led to the arrest over the week-end of Constable Cornelius Watzka of East Kingston on the same charge.

This morning Watzka was arraigned before Judge Cullotan in police court and told his side of the story. He said that Komasa had called him on the telephone and he had driven to Komasa's house and they had then driven uptown. Komasa told him that he had been informed that the Cave boy was the one who had been tampering with Komasa's rowboat in the Esopus creek.

Watzka said that they saw the boy on North Front street and Komasa had taken the boy by the arm and placed him in the back seat of the car. Watzka said he had told the boy he had botter tell his mother that he was going with the men, and that the boy had agreed to accompany them voluntarily.

Former Mayor Palmer Canfield, who represented the boy's father, asked that an adjournment be taken to Saturday morning as the boy was now in school so that the boy's version could be obtained. If Watzka's story of the affair was true it put a different complexion on the story as far as Watzka was concerned.

Other Police Cases

Thomas Barry, 64, of Washington Heights, was found lying on the lowlands with his body partly in the Esopus creek on Saturday afternoon. With him was a half filled bottle of bay rum. Barry was arrested for public intoxication to which charge he pleaded guilty today and was sentenced to 10 days in jail.

Vernon Butler, 27, of Monroe, was arrested Sunday for public intoxication on Abeel street. This morning he was fined $5.

Louis Aiello of Glasco parked his car in the fire zone on Fair street this morning. It cost him $2 later in police court.

Michael Murphy, 47, of Albany, arrested for panhandling the residents on O'Neil street this morning pleaded for another chance and was given a suspended jail sentence provided he left town within the hour.

Move to Preserve Coxing Cemetery

A movement is under way more effectually to preserve the old Coxing Cemetery which contains the graves of eleven officers of the Revolutionary Army and eight officers of the War of the Rebellion. The Rev. James F. Nilan, of New York, who has a summer residence at High Falls, has taken a great deal of interest in the matter. Among the monuments erected in the cemetery is one to Captain Frederick Schoonmaker, who was an aide-de-camp to Washington and a captain in Pawling's Ulster County Regiment; also a monument to his son-in-law, Abraham Clearwater, who was a sergeant in the Provincial Army during the French and Indian war, and who commanded the Marbletown Troop of Horse during the War of the American Revolution. Also a monument to Thomas Clearwater, who was a trooper in the Marbletown Troop of Horse; one to James G. Osterhoudt, who was an officer in the United States Navy during the War of the Rebellion. The other officers of that war buried in the Coxing Cemetery are James E. Bundy, a corporal in Co. H, 126th Regiment, New York Volunteers. Others who served in that war and who are buried in the old cemetery are David W. Bundy, Daniel Sullivan, Jacob Countryman, John Countryman, John B. Van Wagoner. There are several at whose graves there are stones, the inscription upon which has been obliterated by the storms of a century and a half.

F. M. Baucus Dead

Troy, N. Y., June 12 (AP)—Frank M. Baucus, former president of the Troy Auto Club and once well known in civic affairs, died suddenly and mysteriously today, an hour before he was to be called to trial on a charge of grand larceny. Baucus was rushed from his home to a hospital where he died.

Jelly Bear's Cherries

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"There's one tree," growled Jelly Bear hungrily, "that should have ripe cherries by now, although I don't imagine the others around these parts will be ready for eating quite yet."

"Oh," said Honey Bear expectantly as he smacked his lips, "I have a few roots for our dinner today but cherries for dessert would be such a treat."

Jelly Bear left Honey Bear at the entrance of the cave and she began her morning's house-keeping or rather cave-keeping.

Jelly Bear walked in the direction of the cherry tree and saw that there were, indeed, many ripe cherries. He put his front paws on the tree and began shaking it. Down came the cherries.

"Oh, but they're delicious!" he added after he had eaten some. "Honey Bear will certainly relish these for dessert. I must shake down some more." So he shook down more and thought he would sample these to see if they were as good as the others.

"I just can't seem to resist them," he said. "But there'll be plenty to take back." Jelly Bear kept on eating until he realized there were only about a dozen cherries left. "It would hardly be worth while to take back such a few," he said to himself. "The other trees will be ready soon."

He washed his paws and face in a brook on his way home so Honey Bear would not see cherry stains, and when she asked him about the cherries he changed the subject.

And poor Honey Bear worried because he didn't eat his dinner of roots. She feared his lack of appetite meant that he was ill!

Tomorrow—"A Strange Happening"

PORT EWEN

Port Ewen, June 12—The Ever Ready Club will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Arthur Fowler this evening.

Port Ewen Fife, Drum and Bugle Corps will hold its weekly practice this evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Sheridan Simpson are touring the middle western states and expect to visit the Century of Progress in Chicago before they return.

The M. E. Church block party will be held on Main street Thursday evening of this week. Port Ewen Fife, Drum and Bugle Corps will furnish the music. There will be a home-made candy booth, a soft drink and watermelon booth, fancy articles, cake and ice cream. A cafeteria supper will be served also. There will be sports and a fine entertainment is being prepared too. A good time is promised all who attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold White of Cortland are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Neice.

Miss Dorothy Brainard, student nurse in the Benedictine Hospital, who has been ill following a tonsil operation, is improving at her home on Railroad avenue.

The M. E. Church was filled to capacity Sunday morning when the Sunday school presented its Children's Day program, which was given in a pleasing manner. Several children were also baptized.

Katrine P.-T. A. Meeting.

The Parent-Teacher Association of Lake Katrine School will hold a meeting at the school Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. Speakers will be Miss Katherine Murphy, James T. Loughran and Mrs. Pratt Boice, the president.

"The United States Limited"—When And Where?

There's no steam up yet in the boiler of the transcontinental train that some day may make an unbroken coast-to-coast dash across the United States, but new railroad legislation might make possible a train of this kind by regulating competition, which has been a barrier to cooperation between eastern and western lines on such a project. The map of main east-west roads, while not showing all lines and not necessarily the most direct routes, shows the scope of the eastern and western fields of competition and through traffic.

WEST SHOKAN

West Shokan, June 12—There was a very pleasing attendance at the Saturday night dance held in Colange's Hall with everyone well pleased that the weather cooled down seemingly just for the occasion.

Among prominent week-end guests at the Burgher House were Charles Gries and Mrs. Mary Hartmann of New York city. Members of both families have been coming to this locality for many years to the end that both Mr. Gries and Mrs. Hartmann feel themselves right at home and among home folks in West Shokan.

Mr. and Mrs. Grecian Bessrodney and son, Julius, made their usual Saturday and Saturday night stay at Maple Dell. Mr. and Mrs. Bessrodney have become so attached to the people of this section, coming to Maple Dell season after season, that they expect soon to purchase a permanent home here. Mr. Bessrodney is a professional New York musician by trade. He takes part daily in one of the Station WABC orchestral broadcasts.

The members of the Gibbons family of Staten Island were at their Maltby Hollow bungalow during the week-end. They were formerly for years regular summertime guests at the popular Maple Dell hostelry.

Harold Constable has been assisting Elwyn Davis a few days with his late corn and potato planting.

The West Shokan school plans holding the annual picnic at Forsyth Park on Tuesday. If stormy the affair will be postponed until the closing day of school on Friday. The members of the Garden Seed Club, including the teacher, Mrs. West, are pooling the treasury balance toward paying for the attendance of the school at the afternoon movie show. Arrangements have been made to leave the school grounds at 10:30 a. m. On Wednesday and Thursday the grade examinations will be held. School closing generally is looked forward to by pupils in keen anticipation for the coming summer playtime.

Professor and Mrs. Arthur Condon of Palenville were Saturday afternoon callers at the home of Mrs. Watson Bishop in West Shokan Heights and later on Mr. and Mrs. Shepard Bell of Main street.

The local hay crop is growing apace, some alfalfa and clover fields are in fact just in prime for cutting. Early cuttings generally are reported from localities to the south and east of the reservoir section.

Inspector Arthur V. Turner accompanied by Irving Coddington has been visiting farmers supplying milk to the Kyserike creamery. Mr. Turner, who has been many years in the milk inspection work, has acquired the knack of tempering his zeal with prudence in cooperating with the dairymen to the end that their milk may be sold in a condition to comply with the required rules and regulations governing its shipment to the Metropolitan area.

There was an overflow attendance Sunday afternoon at the I. O. O. F. memorial services in Tongore Church.

Deputy Sheriff and Mrs. John Darling of Sheldon Hill road stocked up for their week-end supply at Colange's corner store Saturday.

William Colange's store and adjoining garage and residence apartment shows a striking improvement in the new color of light cream now being applied by local painters.

Carpenters Justus North and Bob Palen are making rapid progress with the Davis barn addition at West Shokan Heights.

The family who will occupy Mr. Smith's residence for the season arrived Saturday.

The beautifully hued mountain laurel now in full bloom brings many visitors who pass over the back roads where the flowering shrub grows luxuriant in its native wayside pastures. One of the most profuse growths to be seen in this section may be found by driving over the West Shokan Heights road from Dwyer's Corner to the Samsonville county road.

The pesky Mexican bean beetle has made its local appearance again and even the humble potato bug is right on his job after the early planting. Unquestionably the hot spell of weather has aided their debut so early in the season. Eternal vigilance is the price of either crop in these troubled days it seems.

Myron Silkworth and group of friends sought solace from the hot weather at the former's delightful rest camp at the entrance to Watson Hollow.

Walter Schmoekel of North Main Street Heights, is employed on the road working relay.

The local strawberry crop is coming on. Filmore Bell, veteran Watson Hollow road truck gardener, is offering his customers the luscious berries as the first of his annual summer crop rotation. Mr. Bell has been doing business at the same old stand for well over 50 years and is still carrying on well at 79.

Mr. and Mrs. Golden Van Benschoten of Hemlock Knoll Cottage, Shokan, were callers here Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. William G. Walsh of Margaretville and New York city, former well known summer visitors here, called on their old boarding mistress, Mrs. Watson Bishop, on Thursday afternoon. They were en route to the mountains after having celebrated earlier in the week their 28th wedding anniversary and Mr. Walsh's 51st birthday, falling on the same date. Mr. Walsh recently returned from a business trip to the West Indies and may locate there permanently.

Mrs. Katherine Sherman of Dwyer's corner, was a Kingston visitor on Thursday, making the trip with Judge Lester Davis, local merchant.

The usual local Sunday School and preaching services held Sunday afternoon were well attended.

Judge and Mrs. Fred L. Weidner or North Main street entertained Kingston relatives Sunday.

Trooper Ray Dunn, well known member of the Phoenicia winter patrol, has been transferred to barracks at Sidney for the present.

Sympathy is extended Charles Barber of Main street and Mrs. Edwin Gessner of Olive Bridge in the death of their sister, Mrs. Clement Wright, of Woodland Valley. The funeral was held Saturday afternoon at Breithaupt's undertaking parlor in Phoenicia, with interment following in Tongore Cemetery.

Joseph H. DeWitt, well known known local historian and "cool breeze" farmer of the east side, is just getting around from a seige of measles. His two stalwart sons likewise have been victims. All hope that "genial Farmer Joe" will get all squared up in time for his heavy haying.

Local Strawberries May Be Purchased

The picking of Ulster county strawberries is now in full swing and now is the time to purchase high quality home grown berries for canning, preserving and other uses, according to the Farm Bureau-Consumer marketing service. The berries are of high quality due to the favorable growing conditions. The extremely hot weather may reduce the yield considerably, which makes it more important to get strawberries promptly. The price has been very low, much below the cost of production.

Strawberry Shortcake

The popularity of strawberry festivals and the delicious strawberry shortcake served make it unnecessary to give any recipes for this unresistable dish. Who could resist partaking of a dish of fresh home grown strawberries covering a crisp, fresh biscuit, with a snowy covering of rich Ulster county whipped cream, surmounted by one large ripe berry?

Strawberry Preserves

The Home Bureau suggests the following recipe for preserving strawberries: Pick over, wash and hull 4 pounds of fresh home grown berries. Add three pounds of sugar and heat gently until the sugar dissolves and the juice is drawn from the berries. Cook rapidly until the fruit is plump and transparent and the syrup thick. Pack carefully in clean, hot jars and seal. The Home Bureau at 280 Wall street in Kingston will be pleased to give out other recipes on request.

About the Folks

Friday Miss Eva Clinton returned to her home here from Ithaca College where she was graduated with the degree of B. S.

Sanford Magee was taken suddenly ill on Railroad avenue on Saturday afternoon and was removed to his home, 97 Orchard street, in the ambulance.

Miss Dolores Rice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Rice of Cedar Ridge, Irvington-on-Hudson, and formerly of Kingston, graduated Tuesday, June 6, from the College of Mt. St. Vincent. She received the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

Whale Lives Long Time.

The elephant has been known to live for one hundred and fifty years, the bear for fifty, the lion for thirty-five, the squirrel for six and the field mouse for four years, but the longest-lived of all seems to be the whale, with five hundred years.

9 Killed When Plane Crashes In Chicago

Chicago, June 12 (AP).—A huge twin-motored airplane, the Northern Light, plunged 600 feet to earth, carrying to death nine persons, including seven holiday-boat visitors to the Chicago World's Fair.

Seven of the victims of the crash yesterday afternoon were men. Two were women.

Sudden heavy winds crumpled one wing of the big ship, sending it plunging into a field near suburban Glenview. Flames from the gasoline supply, which exploded, shot high into the air, driving back rescuers, and burning the victims beyond recognition. Six of them had been positively identified early today. They were:

Edward M. Fay, Chicago.

Miss Stoppanie Ongcak, 20, of Chicago.

Captain Carol V. Vickery, 36, pilot of the plane.

Harry Jacobs, 33, his mechanic, of Wheeling, Ill.

Joseph G. Robinson, 21, of 565 Fifth avenue, New York, a junior at Washington and Lee University.

Edward G. Schaler, 22, of Storm Lake, Iowa, a junior at the University of Chicago.

Miscellaneous Shower.

New Paltz, June 12.—On June 2, Mrs. Robert Park entertained at a miscellaneous shower and bridge in honor of the approaching marriage of her sister, Miss Agnes Miller, to Dr. D. S. Beattie of New Paltz.

Petersen-Bujak

Miss Bernice Bujak of 48 First avenue, this city, and Serenus Petersen of New Paltz were united in marriage at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, June 4, by the Rev. Francis P. Borowski, pastor of Immaculate Conception Church. The bride who wore a yellow frock with large picture hat, and carried yellow roses, was attended by her sister, Miss Sally Bujak, who wore a frock of blue with picture hat, and carried pink roses. A reception was held after the ceremony and later a wedding supper was served to about fifty guests. The bride and groom received many beautiful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Petersen will live in apartments in the Zimmerman house on Eltinge avenue, New Paltz.

Kallop Will Go to Elmira Reformatory

Judge Tracy Revokes Suspension of Sentence and Invokes Original Sentence—Turned Over to Court By Probation Officer.

Judge J. C. Tracy of Columbia county held a brief session of county court this morning, taking the term from Judge Traver as the matter to come up before the court could not be heard by Judge Traver, who was disqualified due to the fact that he was district attorney at the time of the originating of the charge. Carl Kallop was the defendant to face the court. J. Edward Conway appeared for The People and stated that Probation Officer Service desired to surrender the defendant to the court for action of the court for violation of parole.

On January 21, 1931, Kallop and two other young men were charged with and entered pleas of guilty to assault and at that time all three were sentenced to Elmira Reformatory but sentence was suspended and they were directed to report to Probation Officer Service. Kallop had once previously been on parole but Judge Tracy took the same action in Kallop's case as in the other cases in order to give him an opportunity to make good.

Mr. Conway told the court that there had been several complaints about Kallop. The complaints had all been in regard to his actions toward a young girl. These reports had been investigated from time to time by the probation officer and Kallop's record since he had been on parole had not been good. Last November after one of these complaints Kallop was advised to behave and keep straight or something would happen.

On April 5 he again became involved in trouble with a Saugerties High School girl. This girl on her way home was accosted by Kallop, who was passing in his car. Mr. Conway said that at the time the girl believed it was someone she knew and she wenth to the car and then found she did not know Kallop. He induced her to enter the car and drove away. Instead of taking her home, he said, they drove along a little used road and finally the girl jumped from the car near a farmhouse and Kallop drove away. He was later arrested and charged with assault but the charge was reduced to disorderly conduct in court at Saugerties and Kallop entered a plea of guilty to that charge. Mr. Conway said Kallop was not cooperating with the authorities and the type of trouble in which Kallop was involved from time to time was the same, that of interfering with young girls. He said he was brought into court and turned over to the court by the probation officer for action.

Chief Richter and Justice Bennett of Saugerties were in court ready to give the court information in regard to the Saugerties charge. They were not called.

Judge Tracy revoked the suspension of sentence and invoked the original sentence and turned Kallop over to the custody of the sheriff. William D. Brinnier, Jr., appeared for defendant.

Court recessed until June 19.

SIDNEY SAMUELS HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

About 11:30 o'clock this morning a Ford roadster driven by Sidney Samuels of Saugerties, and a Packard sedan driven by Miss Clementine Mills of Jersey City, were in collision on Albany avenue at Foxhall avenue. Both cars were damaged. Samuels was taken to the Kingston Hospital where it was found he was injured about the hip.

PHOENICIA

Phoenicia, June 12—The many friends of J. J. McGrath were glad to see him able to be out again after being confined to the house a few weeks with rheumatism.

George and Harry Baldwin and R. B. Longyear enjoyed a night's fishing Saturday at the dam.

Mrs. H. Wright of Woodland, who died in the Kingston Hospital was brought to the Breithaupt funeral parlor from where her funeral was held Saturday afternoon. Sympathy is extended to her husband and children.

The itch like the locusts seems to pop up periodically and no one seems to know its source. Many have been afflicted with it and others are having it. The old time remedy was sulphur.

Phoenicia has a senior and a junior baseball nine. The juniors are putting on some good games with match teams.

Mr. Joyce has charge of the station now for the summer. Mr. Krom is at Haines Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Loomis were callers in Hobart Sunday.

George Sweet is again running a butcher wagon. He also carries vegetables. He covers quite a route.

Mrs. Jerome Newman was a caller in Kingston Thursday.

Miss Frances Hill spent Thursday in Kingston.

Examinations are underway and preparations made for the closing of school for another term.

Living rooms are being built over the service station, being erected by Burr Deming.

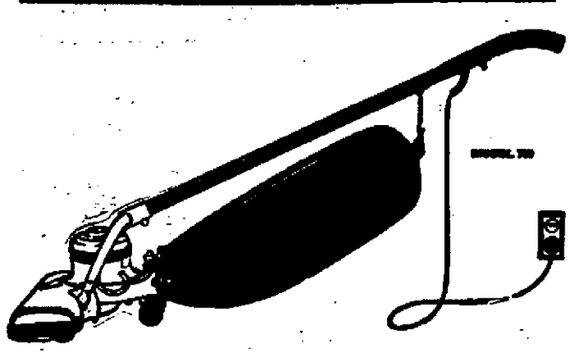
Invented Automatic Coupler

Maj. Eli H. Janney invented the automatic car coupler in 1873. Major Janney was a Confederate officer on the staff of Robert E. Lee. No couplers of the design shown by Janney's patent of 1873 or 1874 were put into service, but in 1879 Major Janney took out a new patent in which the contour lines of the meeting surface were changed to those that were eventually adopted by the Master Car Builders' association, and some of this design were soon tried on passenger cars.

A Unanimous Desire

"Each man desires to live without working," said Hi Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "but an intricate condition must develop when everybody demands the same privilege at the same time."—Washington Star.

This new HOOVER HAS 2 SPEEDS



It goes like a whirlwind to flutter the deep-lying grit out of thick, heavy rugs. Then, when you come to the thinner rugs, you switch it from high to low speed and run it more slowly and noiselessly.

There's another advantage about this new Two-Speed Hoover. It gives you a choice of cleaning speeds for the daily going-over of rugs and the more thorough weekly cleaning.

But the best thing about this new Silver Jubilee Hoover is the new ease of purchase. Liberal allowance for your old electric cleaner—reduced monthly payments and a down payment of only $4.50

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 12, 1933.

PLAYING SAFE.

There are still a good many people in the world, even in America, who take a passive or hostile attitude toward any new proposal. It is easy for honest and intelligent people to do this. Obvious objections may be made to any innovation, especially in the highly debatable fields of economics and government. The experts themselves often disagree.

The "show me" critics, as usual, consider themselves safe and sane, perhaps the only steady and level-headed people in a crazy world. The trouble with this position is that in a world going to the dogs so rapidly as our world and country have seemed to be doing lately, the one thing not safe and sane is standing pat and resisting action. When an individual or a society is sliding down an apparently bottomless hill, something has to be done. New, untried remedies are dangerous, because you cannot be sure how they will work. But in such a situation as this country has been in for some time, the most dangerous thing to do is to do nothing.

Nature is destructive as well as constructive. It is all right to "let nature take her course" when she is helping us. We have to oppose her when she is hindering us. Humanity gets forward largely by outsmarting nature, as when we make a machine or build a house or establish a government to enact a remedial law. Fortunately a great majority of our people have come to understand and approve the need of new, bold, often experimental, action to counteract the forces that have been driving us toward destruction. With confidence and courage, even seemingly unworkable methods can often be made to work.

A MESS OF SOFTIES

Boy was on the track team of an old prep school run on principles of plain living and high thinking. The team went to a meet on the grounds of an institution well known for elaborate equipment and devotion to the last word in the "Progressive" type of modern education.

He was asked on his return how he liked the wonderful school. "It was all right," he said without enthusiasm. "At first I thought everything was grand. I'd hate to come back to this place. Then I got into it a little more. They haven't got any school spirit at all. And why would they have? Why Juniors and Seniors are allowed to smoke, and they have everything done for them. Why they even have their beds made and their rooms cleaned for them. They're nothing but a big mess of softies! I was glad to get back. Believe me, this is the stuff!" He tapped lovingly the back of the century-old pew of the plain little chapel in which the parents and boys had been hearing exquisite music given by some of the students. They came out on the ancient lawns under ancient trees. "Keen here! Glad you came. Good-bye. Study hour now."

Boy's parents walked slowly down the old paths to their car, with their hearts made glad. It isn't luxuries that people remember happily in later life. It's the plain and humble circumstances in which they had to do things themselves, in which they measured themselves against obstacles and gained strength by thinking and doing.

DEMAND FOR DIAMONDS.

Diamonds have been going up again. Some jewelers say they have been selling hardly anything else lately. It isn't a boom, but the precious stones are more lively than they have been for years. People buy them mostly uncut, apparently for speculation. They put hoarded money into them, or money drawn from re-opening banks. This is part of the inflationary movement. Many buyers put their wealth into jewels as an attractive way of changing "from money to things," because they fear loss of savings value in currency inflation.

Thus a very ancient form of hoarding is resumed. Jewels for long ages have been regarded in Asia and in Europe as a convenient means of preserving and transporting wealth. Diamonds, in modern times, have had first call. The precious metals are bulky, and are losing their charm. Silver has been lower recently than since the time of Abraham. Gold in most countries is forbidden treasure except to governments. What, therefore, more natural and obvious than to invest in diamonds, which are beautiful to look at, which can be easily concealed, and which are negotiable almost anywhere?

The toilet kit matter deserves full investigation and public report. If those kits are really fifty-five cents better than the ones previously purchased by the army, more lasting and satisfactory, entirely worth the $1.40 charged for them, well and good. The public wants to know it. If they are no better at $1.40 than the ones at eighty-five cents, the public wants to know it, too. In the latter case somebody was either naive or crooked. Neither crookedness nor naivete has any place in the public business.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

GOOD TIME TO BE EXAMINED.

Although the popular time to get a complete examination by your family physician is at the beginning of the year, or on your birthday, anytime of the year is a good time, and perhaps the very best time is during the warm weather.

If the examination is made during the cold weather, there may be conditions found that require operation—infected teeth, infected tonsils, sinus inflammation, gall bladder infection or other troubles—that should be corrected.

During the cool or cold weather there is not the same opportunity for the outdoors after the operation. There is less warmth and sunlight in the winter and spring months, thus more chance of colds, bronchitis, or even pneumonia. With warm bright weather there should be no complications arise and recovery should be rapid.

Of course, if the condition is such as to require operation it should be done regardless of the weather, but where choice can be made, the warm weather is the best time.

Very often a little holiday is needed after an operation however slight, and the warm weather is the time when most benefit can be obtained. Where parents have been advised to have youngsters' tonsils or infected teeth removed, they should wait a few days after school closes for the summer vacation and the youngster has got over the annual school examinations, before having the operation done. Thus the youngster has all the warm bright weather of summer in which to get built up before school opens again in September.

So, if you think you have something that is not just right in that body of yours, or even if you think you are all right, let your doctor check you over at this time. There are a great many people who feel well. There are a great many more people who do not feel so well—feel tired and lazy—but continue their work. There are other people who are suffering with pains and aches that they know are due to bad teeth, bad tonsils, sluggish liver, or constipation, but hesitate to go to a doctor because it may mean removal of the teeth or tonsils, or a change in their diet or other daily habits.

Now whether you feel well or not, there may be some condition in the body that is slowly gathering force and by the time you feel an ache or a pain, considerable damage has been done to that body of yours. Don't wait for this ache or pain to warn you but get your doctor to check you over at least once a year.

By the World FORGOT

A New Serial by Ruby M. Ayres

SYNOPSIS: Georgia Bancroft hangs weeping over a gate. On her way home to England from nursing her mother in New York she has tried to comfort Nicholas Boyd, the former film star. Boyd, through his own heroism, has maimed his valuable face for life and walks with a limp as well. When his contract was cancelled his wife Bernie deserted him. He turns Georgia away brusquely, but without knowing it, he has come for rest to her home village.

Chapter 13

NICHOLAS AGAIN

BUT Georgie did not stop, and suddenly she was humiliatingly conscious of a step behind her, and then, as she did not look up, of a hand on her shoulder and a voice which said,

"I told you there were to be no more tears, Lobie."

Georgie did not look up, but something warm and delicious seemed to flow through every vein in her body, as if someone had poured healing balm into a wound, and after a moment Nicholas Boyd said:

"It's no use pretending. I've been watching you for at least five minutes."

She groped in a pocket and produced a handkerchief, dabbing her eyes with a hand that was not quite steady.

"You don't seem very surprised to see me," she said resentfully.

"You don't seem surprised to see me," she said.

"I'm not in the least surprised," he answered calmly. "Why should I be? I heard your voice this morning talking to Mrs. Spears, and besides I followed your example and read the label on your trunk just as you read the label on mine."

She flashed him a radiant smile.

"You didn't!" she breathed.

"I assure you I did; why are you so surprised?"

"Because I thought if you had known I lived here, you would have gone somewhere else."

His eyes met hers, unsmilingly.

"And why should I alter all my plans just because you happen to live here?" he asked.

SHE stood silent, twisting her handkerchief, then suddenly she raised her eyes and smiled with disarming sweetness.

"I think it was clever of you to recognize my voice," she said. And then as he said nothing, she added: "I'm glad you've got the room that looks over the garden."

"Did you make it your business to find out which room I had got?"

"Yes. You see, my uncle was down at the Boar's Head yesterday and they told him about you, and he told me, and so . . ."

"And so you went down this morning to tell Mrs. Spears to look after me properly, is that it?"

She flushed a little. "Well—not exactly—but I wanted to make sure it really was you."

"And now you have made sure?"

She had nothing to say to that, and he said: "If you've quite finished crying, shall we walk back?"

Georgie said impulsively, "Isn't it too far for you?"

"When I haven't walked a step for a week?"

"Well, I only thought you might be tired."

They walked slowly down the road together, Nicholas leaning heavily on his stick.

Georgie asked suddenly,

"Did you see my uncle?"

"I saw him this morning; as a matter of fact, he asked me to have a drink with him."

"And did you?"

"Yes."

"He'll be pleased," Georgie told him. Her uncle had raved against this man, but she knew that if only Boyd would drink with him, the tide would be changed to one of the greatest friendship.

They walked a little way in silence, till Nicholas asked suddenly: "Why does your mother allow you to live with him?"

She raised startled eyes. "Allow me to? Why shouldn't she?"

"A man like that is not a fit guardian, shall we say, for any girl."

Georgie considered the point.

"I like him," she said at last.

"So you may, but he is not a fit guardian for you. Haven't you any other relations?"

"No."

"Or friends?"

"Not in the village. Not anywhere as a matter of fact."

She looked up at him with rather puzzled eyes.

"Why isn't he a fit guardian for me?" she questioned. "I am quite able to look after myself."

"So I have discovered."

She laughed a little and Nicholas looked down at her.

"You seem happy enough now," he said, and Georgie answered impulsively. "That's because I'm with you."

A second later she cried out in confusion. "That was a silly thing to say. I didn't mean it; at least—"

"I know quite well what you meant," he said, and then, half hesitatingly: "Your uncle has asked me to visit you."

"And will you?"

"No."

She sighed. "You're honest, anyway, but you're right not to come. It's not much fun in our house; it's all . . . sort of dead. I don't wonder Uncle Edward prefers to be down at the Boar's Head. I'd rather be there myself."

"And now perhaps he'll ask me to tea some day," she thought.

But Nicholas only said: "The Boar's Head is not a place for you to visit."

"Isn't it? Well I do go there, often. I like Mrs. Spears. She's always cheerful. Nobody is cheerful in our house, except me, and it's not easy to go on for ever, being cheerful by yourself."

They were in sight of the village, and Nicholas stood still.

"I'll say goodbye," he said.

"But I'm going the same way," she told him hurriedly.

"Yes," he agreed. "But you're going to run on by yourself and leave me to follow."

The hot blood ran up into her face.

"You mean you don't want to be seen with me?"

"I mean that in a village of this sort if you are seen with me people will find something to talk about when there is nothing."

She stared up at him for a moment, then with a half shrug of her shoulders she turned away and hurried on down the road.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS—By John Hix

For further great silence the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Box S. S. Fox, Ont.

Samuel Jessup, eccentric wealthy old Englishman, spent the last 25 years of his life satisfying his abnormal craving for medicine. Beginning when he was 40 years old, Jessup suddenly acquired a taste for medicines of many kinds—powders, pills and liquids—which stayed with him the rest of his life.

All in all, Jessup took about a quarter of a million pills, drank 40,000 bottles of medicine, and ate countless powders between 1791 and 1816. The more medicine he took the more he wanted, and the more he wanted the more he took until, two years before his death, he reached an all time high with 51,190 pills—almost a thousand a week—for the year 1814.

Jessup's medicine bill is a strange court document in Heckington, Lincolnshire, England. When his apothecary was unable to collect for Jessup's many doses, he took the matter to court and produced an itemized bill that ran 55 closely written columns.

Jessup died when he was 65 years old. Whether he lived to that age because of or in spite of his pills and powders is, of course, a matter of conjecture.

The legs of the Horseshoe crab have spines on them with which the crab shreds and chews its food before taking it in the mouth.

Tomorrow: Genius and Prodigy

New Paltz Normal School Activities

Join Up With the Navy Band

New York—Of course you have noticed what a straw hat does to the average man. It takes about ten years off his life, to all appearances, at any rate. Perhaps summer clothes do something of the same thing to us. Let's hope so.

It seems to me that I have never seen women around New York look better than they have this spring. What is responsible for it? Are all the white fixings they wear around their necks plus the white hats? White is very kind to most women.

Here's a smart little frock that is white with good-looking navy trimmings. An all-white frock is often too ingenue or too dressy, so designers oblige by adding a contrast, black, brown, navy, red—anything to relieve the purity of the ensemble.

White with brown accents, which was very good last summer and the summer before, is still for that matter. White with black is a hardy perennial, and white with navy is almost as much to be depended upon. This season it ranks particularly high.

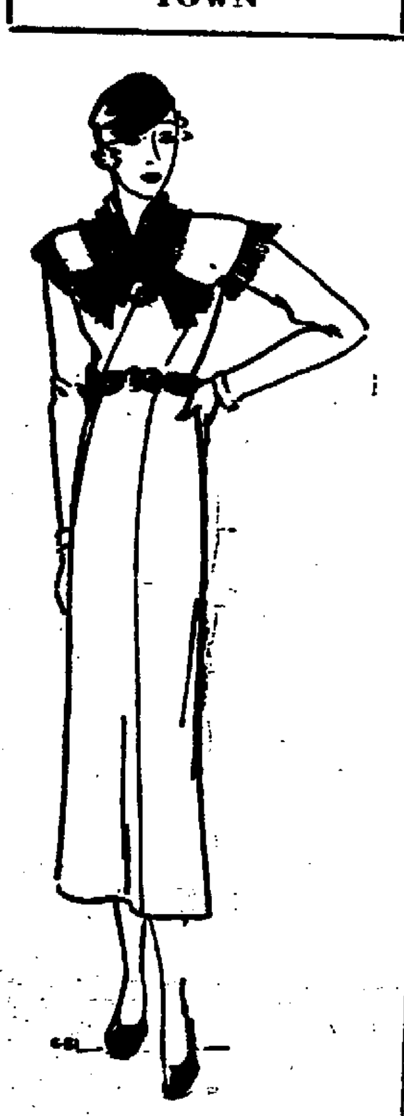
As a matter of fact, one could reverse the colors in this costume and still have something worth talking about, white where it is navy and navy where it is white.

With the costume as is, one may select either white or navy shoes and still have the third choice of black. One's glove choice should be restricted to either white or navy.

Most women are affecting stockings several shades lighter than those worn during the winter.

In purses, there is a wide choice, and for summer patent leather, which may be had in white and colors as well as black, is very chic. So are the linens and cottons with or without leather embellishments.

FOR A DAY IN TOWN



(Copyright, 1933, by Fairchild)

Illustrated is a dress developed in white crepe, slightly rough, and the contrast is introduced in navy taffeta for the scarf and belt. Pleated edges at the shoulders and neckline are nice touches.

Sports Clothes for the Very Young

(Copyright, 1933, by Fairchild)

Summer playclothes illustrated are from current showings of metropolitan shops.

Printed Broadcloth makes the sunsuit and wide-brimmed hat at the upper left, the shorts of which are box-pleated.

The suit of check gingham at the right, has button-suspender straps and side closing.

The dimity sash frock for scorching days.

A pantie frock is another suggestion.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

One of the semi-formal fashions worn in Paris this spring is the hat made of printed gold lame which is usually worn with a black dinner frock.

OUR DAILY PATTERN

A Popular Suit Style For Boys

7893. Blouse and "Shorts" trousers are comprised in this model, and afford a comfortable and practical suit for school or play. Jersey, flannel, linen, madras or percale are excellent materials for this suit. The sleeve may be made in wrist length as in the large view, or short as shown in the small view. The trousers are made with front closing.

Designed in 4 sizes: 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. Size 8 will require 1⅞ yard of 35 inch material if blouse is made with long sleeves. The blouse alone with long sleeves will require 1⅛ yard. With short sleeves 1 yard. The trousers alone will require ⅞ yard. The trousers pockets, and underfacings of muslin or coarse linen will require 1-3 yard of 35 inch material.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

HAND STEADY AND EYE KEEN AT THREE SCORE AND 13

West Shokan, June 12.—On Tuesday, June 6, Golden Van Benschoten, genial sage of Hemlock Knoll, Shokan, reached his three score and thirteenth birthday. Except for the pesky rheumatic kinks, too many in fact, for real comfort, Van is carrying on strong, with steady hand and eye keen as an eagle's. Van celebrated his birthday by trimming trees for a good Ashokan neighbor and later in the week, together with Watershed Inspector Frank Barringer, gave willing assistance planting a corn and potato patch for his stricken northside farm neighbor, Victor Dunnigan, who is flat in bed with the measles. On the occasion of his birthday, Mr. and Mrs. Van were remembered by their friend, Miss Lydia Diefenbacker, of Newark General Hospital nursing staff, with an elaborately festooned birthday cake bearing a sugar wreath of yellow roses, product of the bakery. Genial Van's host of friends wish him many returns of the day.

Brandorff Attacks Child's Environment

Using the question, "Is It Well With The Child?" as his text for his Children's Day sermon Sunday morning, the Rev. O. E. Brandorff, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, said that that question had not been commonly asked before Jesus came. Jesus' command to "Suffer the little children to come unto me" and His severe warning against injuring them, was a far cry from the ruthless sacrifices of children by the ancients to the fire God Moloch and the infanticide practiced freely by the Romans.

"It is a question which must first be considered in the home, for the family is the primary social unit. As goes the home so goes society. Unfortunately many modern parents are not vitally concerned with this question for the simple reason that they are too much concerned with their own personal welfare. The independence of womanhood has proved a blessing to our women but for many of their children it has proved a curse, for many of our modern mothers in their eagerness to see life are neglecting their homes. They are little concerned with the question, Is it well with the child? until a police officer knocks at their door to inform them that their child has gone astray—and then they are horrified. The majority of the children in orphan homes today are not actual orphans. They are children with parents but parents who are not true fathers and mothers."

The preacher lamented the fact that while many parents take time to study how to grow a garden, how to play bridge, how to play golf, they make no effort to learn how to raise a child. "In some cases we find children growing up as useful, respectable citizens not because of their parents, but in spite of their parents. The credit for their noble lives goes to public school or Sunday school teachers and other workers." Pastor Brandorff read a recipe for developing a problem child, then read the following recipe of Alice Cripps who has raised a fine family of five children. Her recipe, which appeared in the Christian Herald, is as follows: "Love—oceans of it. 2. Self-respect—give generous portions. 3. Cultural advantages, plenty of best available. 4. Music, laughter, play—Use generously for season in. 5. Money—Use sparingly. 6 Religion—Use judiciously to thicken. It makes the best foundation." She adds, "It's just fun to be the mother to a family like this."

"Is it well with the child?" is a question to be considered not only by parents but by all citizens," he said. "Children spend more of their waking hours outside of their homes than in their homes. You see therefore, what a problem faces the parents in raising their children if the outside environment is evil," he continued.

Dr. Malcom McLeod reminds us of the mother of the great Chinese philosopher, Mengsten, who lived near a slaughter house, but when she noticed that her son was watching with indifference the pain of the animals she moved away. Her next home happened to be near a graveyard. Finding that such an environment also was not wholesome for her son, she moved again. Today thousands of our parents are indifferent about the outside environment of their children. They permit their children to see vicious motion pictures, for instance, which are making them calloused to suffering, and also to crime and immorality. They seem to be indifferent to the fact that the movies are giving their children a morbid and distorted conception of life.

"We are reminded that one million crooks cost our country 16 billions of dollars a year. At the same time we spend only five millions a year in constructive social work for 50 millions of boys and girls under 21 years of age. If the parents do not stop to ask, "Is it well with the child?" then others who love their community and country, must be concerned about the question and seek to remove the destructive forces in the children's environment which tear down character."

"What are you doing as a citizen to protect our future citizens from the curse of the speakeasies and immoral roadhouses? What are you doing toward cleaning off from our news stands filthy literature besmirching young minds? What are you doing to protect the children from one of the worst influences of childhood today—the indecent motion picture?"

"To settle the question whether or not our modern motion pictures are injurious to children a four year scientific investigation was conducted in which several thousand children were carefully interviewed and examined. The investigation brought out the fact that the children retain as an average 70 per cent of what he sees.

"The survey showed that of the 1,500 films studied, 82 per cent had as their subjects crime, sex and love. Analyzing 115 films it was found that 71 deaths occurred in 45 films. There were 59 cases of assault and battery, 17 holdups, 21 kidnapings, 406 crimes 'pulled off' and 43 others attempted—a total of 449 crimes in 115 films." Think of it, 23,000,000 children every week are seeing such films!

LIFEBUOY is a marvelous complexion soap—that's only common sense! For the same deep-cleansing lather that ends "B.O." (body odor)—purifies face pores, too. It frees them of clogged wastes. Thus clears, freshens, refines the skin—brings back youthful bloom! You owe it to your complexion to wash it daily with Lifebuoy.

A warm weather hint

Slip in a few extra Lifebuoy baths, these warm, perspiry days. Wonderfully refreshing—they wash away that tired, sticky feeling. And Lifebuoy's fresh, clean, quickly-vanishing scent tells you "B.O." goes, too.

A PRODUCT OF LEVER BROTHERS CO.

This is the GOLDEN AGE

OUR time is the greatest the world has ever seen. We have more to be happy with. We have better things, greater variety, keener comforts for our choosing, more conveniences to help us in our work, more things that elevate and entertain.

This is the day of better homes, better clothing, better babies, better health, better everything. Compare any phase of our life with that of years ago and you will find that it is better.

And what is the instrument that has made, and is making these better things possible? Advertising!

Advertising is the news of all the looms, all the furnaces, all the laboratories, all the shops, all the stores that are working, planning and building for you.

Because of advertising, luxuries and necessities that once would have been worth a king's ransom, are yours at little cost. Advertising pits merchant against merchant, artisan against artisan, manufacturer against manufacturer, for your benefit. This competition brings out the best there is in everything for your personal benefit.

You wouldn't know about many boons of modern life except through advertising. That is why you are not taking full advantage of the better things today if you consistently overlook the advertisements.

OFFICE CAT

By Junius

Our bet is that if all the kitchen aprons in the hope chests of this year's June brides were laid end to end, they wouldn't reach from the front door to the breakfast nook.

Some people notice that the days are getting longer; others that the nights are getting shorter.

First Hobo—I'm just like a poet; I long for the wings of a dove.

Second Hobo—Huh! Right now I'd rather have breast of a chicken 'long with a couple of drumsticks.

The Ordeal!

It wasn't the thought of asking the girl that caused his courage to drop.

It wasn't popping the question, but the task of questioning pop.

A fellow on the street the other day said that business was so quiet that one could actually hear notes drawing interest at the bank a block away.

Man—Do you know a reliable fortune teller?

Neighbor Business Man — Well, Dun & Bradstreet are rather good.

And now they tell us Sitting Bull had a daughter—Sitting Pretty.

A New York lawyer tells of a conversation that occurred in his presence between a bank president and his son who was about to leave for the West, there to engage in business on his own account.

Banker Father—Son, on this, the threshold of your business life, I desire to impress one thought upon your mind. Honesty, ever and always, is the policy that is best.

Son—Yes, father.

Banker Father—And, by the way, I would advise you to read up a little on corporation law. It will amaze you to discover how many things you can do in a business way and still be honest.

If you want to make friends with people ask their advice. You do not necessarily have to act on it.

Jean had been naughty and had been sent into the den to "think things over." After a while she came out all smiles and said:

Jean—I thought and I prayer.

Mother—Fine! That will help you to be good.

Jean—Oh, I didn't ask God to help me to be good. I just told Him to help you to put up with me.

If you want your neighbor to know the wonderful things your religion or philosophy will do for him, let him see what it has done for you. One life showing the way is better than ten tongues trying to tell it.

Janice—What has it that has 100 legs, no brains and sings?

Clarice—All right, what?

Janice—Fifty chorus girls.

Awarding Prix de Rome

These are awards made by the French government to art students, which entitle the winners to advanced courses of study at l'Ecole or l'Academie de France in Rome. Those eligible are Frenchmen between the ages of fifteen and thirty, including painters, sculptors, architects, musicians and engravers. They are granted an annual income of 4,000 francs for four years.

Where Hati Gets Its Name

Haiti, an old Carib Indian word, meaning mountainous, is densely wooded and contains such valuable species as rosewood, mahogany, satinwood, pine, cedar, oak and ironwood. The island's tropical fruits arrive at perfection, the coffee shrub yielding heavy crops. The region is especially suited for tobacco and sugar cultivation besides coffee, cotton, pineapple and banana production.

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK, BY THE GRACE OF GOD, FREE AND INDEPENDENT.

TO—heirs at law and next of kin of James McNally, late of the City of Kingston, County of Ulster and State of New York, deceased, whose names and places of residence are unknown to the petitioner; Hon. John J. Bennett, Jr., Attorney General of the State of New York, Albany, N. Y.

YOU AND EACH OF YOU are hereby cited to show cause, at a Surrogate's Court to be held in and for the County of Ulster at the Surrogate's office in the City of Kingston, in said County, on the 20th day of June next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, why the last Will and Testament of James McNally, late of the City of Kingston, Ulster County, deceased, presented to said Surrogate's Court, should not be admitted to probate and recorded as a Will of real and personal estate, in pursuance of the statute, on the petition of James T. McGinnis, of the City of Kingston, the Executor named therein.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused the seal of said Surrogate's Court to be hereunto affixed. Witness HON. GEORGE F. KAUFMAN, Surrogate of our said County, at the City of Kingston, the 19th day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three.

[L. S.]

C. K. LOUGHRAN,
Clerk of the Surrogate's Court.

STATE OF NEW YORK SUPREME COURT: COUNTY OF ULSTER — HARRY G. HARPER and F. ELDEN COONS as Executors under the last Will & Testament of Emma S. Pasquiy, deceased, Plaintiffs, against THE BELLE VISTA HOTEL CORPORATION, ROSA PISACANE, ALDO BOLOGNESI sometimes known as Aldo Bonegni, ANTHONY DEL PAPA and VITO GOLIA, Defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly granted in the above entitled action, and entered in the Ulster County Clerk's office, on the 2nd day of June 1933, I, BERNARD F. CECIRE, the undersigned Referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction in the corridor of the County Court House, in the City of Kingston, County of Ulster, N. Y., on the 21st day of July 1933 at 2 o'clock P. M. (Daylight Saving Time), the premises described in said judgment, as follows, viz.:

ALL that certain piece and parcel of land lying, situate and being in the town of Plattekill, County of Ulster, State of New York, bounded and described as follows, to wit: BEGINNING at a white oak bush in a stone wall and at the northwest corner of Amos Hait's land, said bush is also in a southerly line of Solomon Van Orden's land, running from thence along the line of said Van Orden's as the magnetic needle now points, north sixty seven degrees and twelve minutes west six chains and ten links to the corner of a stone wall and the said Van Orden's lands; thence along the same south twenty nine degrees fifteen minutes west nine chains and five links to a heap of stones on the easterly bank of a brook supposed to be a corner of Ann Mulner's patent; thence along said Van Orden's, Noah Hurcut's and William S. Hait's line south fifty five minutes west four chains ten links to a point on a bluff of rocks nine feet westerly from a white ash sapling marked; thence south eighty two degrees forty five minutes east seven chains sixty one links to the corner of a stone wall and a corner of said Amos Hait's land; thence along the same as the needle pointed in April 1866, north four degrees five minutes west eighteen chains; thence south eighty five degrees twenty five minutes east one chain fourteen links to a stake; thence north eleven degrees forty five minutes east twelve chains ninety two links to the place of beginning, containing twenty two acres of land.

ALSO all that certain other piece of land lying, being and situate in the said town, County and State aforesaid, described and bounded as follows, to wit: On the north by land of Noah Hurcut; on the east by the above described land; on the south by Ira Hait and Daniel B. Gregory; and on the west by the land of Daniel J. Donaldson, containing thirty acres of land, be the same more or less.

ALSO all that certain lot, piece or parcel of land, lying, being and situate in the said town, County and State, bounded and described as follows; to wit: Bounded on the north by lands of Daniel J. Donaldson, now deceased; on the east by land of James H. Hait; on the south by lands of Daniel B. Gregory; and on the west by lands of Daniel Donaldson, deceased, containing thirty acres of land be the same, more or less.

EXCEPTING AND RESERVING out of the same one acre of land heretofore sold by the said William H. Hait to Ira Hait, which is described and bounded as follows, to wit: BEGINNING at a stone on the north side of Wall, said wall being on the north side of the Turnpike, along the lands of James H. Hait, north forty nine degrees east as the needle pointed March 1871, two chains and sixty six links to a stake; thence along lands of William S. Hait, north eighty three degrees and eleven minutes west four chains and twelve links to the centre of the said Turnpike; thence through the centre of the same south thirteen degrees and fifteen minutes east two chains and seventy nine links to a stake on the south side of said Turnpike; thence south eighty three degrees and eleven minutes east three chains and fifty six links to the place of beginning, containing one acre of land be the same more or less.

ALL three parcels of land hereby conveyed being the same premises described in a deed from Joseph Rossi and Rose Rossi, his wife, to the party of the first part, dated March 24, 1921, and recorded in Ulster County Clerk's office March 31, 1921, in Liber 481 of Deeds, at page 152.

AND being the same premises surveyed in February, 1918 by David H. Merritt, according to which survey, said three parcels of land contain fifty and twenty five one hundredth acres of land, a map of which is filed in the office of the Clerk of the County of Ulster, New York.

ALSO all that other parcel or lot of land with the improvements thereon situate, lying and being in the town of Plattekill, County of Ulster, State of New York, bounded and described as follows: BEGINNING at a stone on the south side of wall, said stone being on north side of Turnpike along the lands of James Hait north forty nine degrees east, (as the needle pointed May 1871) two chains and sixty six links to a stake; thence along lands of Seymore Hait north eighty three degrees and eleven minutes west, four chains and twelve links to the center of said turnpike; thence through the center of the same south thirteen degrees and fifteen minutes east two chains and seventy nine links to a stake on the south side of said turnpike; thence south eighty three degrees and eleven minutes east, three chains and forty six links to the place of beginning, containing one acre of land be the same more or less. Being the same premises described in a deed from Rebecca J. Byrne to the party of the first part, dated June 4, 1921, and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's office on the eleventh day of June, 1921, in Liber 482 of Deeds, at page 455.

Dated at the City of Kingston, N. Y., this 2nd day of June, 1933.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON — Vice President Garner, like all newcomers to the senate, is getting his share of ceremonial "razzing."

But he is returning in kind.

It's amusing to watch the progress of this friendly feud which flares up every so often in the senate.

Garner came over from the house where he had ruled with such authority with certain ideas of his own as to parliamentary procedure. He didn't, like Vice President Dawes, try to institute drastic reforms. He merely endeavored to speed up procedure wherever possible.

Borah went to him privately at one time and objected to the haste with which he dispatched a certain bill. Jack laughed, told the Idaho senator that he'd take a slap on the wrist at any time, even more, but senators were supposed to be on their toes and alive to what was going on.

A Dawesian Echo

Several days ago the senate was considering an amendment to a bill involving a change in postal rates. Time came for a vote and it was a tie.

The vice president wasn't in the chair to cast his vote which would have broken the tie. He was at a cabinet meeting. Republicans saw an excellent opportunity. Head of Pennsylvania arose and asked:

"Where is the vice president?"

One of the classic stories of the senate concerns the time that a vice president wasn't in the chair on such an occasion. It was during Dawes' time and when the senate had before it the question of whether Charles B. Warren should be confirmed as Coolidge's choice for attorney general.

Dawes was in his downtown hotel when the vote was taken. He made a frantic effort to get to the senate chamber, but failed. Warren was not confirmed.

Reed reminded the senate of this story, and the fun the democrats had at Dawes' expense, when they criticised him for noting Garner's absence.

Revenge At Last

"Cactus Jack" waited for his opportunity to get even. It came.

A few days later the senate was considering an amendment by Connally of Texas to reduce veterans' pensions 25 per cent. An effort was being made to put the reduction at 15 per cent.

The vote was a tie, 42 to 42.

Without a moment's hesitation Garner announced his vote in favor of Connally's amendment, making it 43 for, 42 against.

Immediately opponents of the Connally amendment were on their feet with a point of order that Garner had no right to vote as it was a tie vote and would have failed.

Down came Garner's gavel and the cryptic retort:

"The chair has a vote and he has already cast it."

ALLIGERVILLE

Alligerville, June 12—The death of Mrs. Selah Terwilliger of Kerhonkson last Wednesday brought sorrow to the hearts of her many friends in this village. She was born and grew to womanhood in this village, where memories will be cherished of her beautiful life.

A strawberry festival will be held in the K. of P. Hall Friday evening, June 16, from 6 o'clock, standard time, until all are served. The young people of High Falls and Alligerville will reproduce the play, "The Colonel's Maid," a three-act comedy success. The proceeds from the play will be for the Alligerville Reformed Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Osterhoudt and sons, Elwood and Francis, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. DeWitt, Mr. and Mrs. John Smith and Mrs. Mary Atkins attended the entertainment and play in Samsonville Friday evening.

Mrs. Edward Hardenbergh of Kyserike entertained the Ladies' Aid last Wednesday afternoon. There was a good representation and all spent a very pleasant afternoon.

Miss Virginia Smith was graduated from New York University last week and is at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Smith.

ATHLETE'S FOOT HEALED IN WEEK

"For sometime, ever since I played foot-ball, I have been troubled with "athlete's foot" and have tried many of the popular remedies, also two special prescriptions without success. At my mother's suggestion I finally used Resinol Ointment and it healed the trouble in about a week. Now I use Resinol about once a month and have never had a trace of "athlete's foot" since I began this treatment." (Signed)—

Talks to parents

Correcting Faults

By ALICE JUDSON PEALE

It is not unusual for parents to go along, blind to their children's faults until some unpleasant or unfortunate occurrence suddenly brings them to their attention. Then, suddenly, they see that a great many things are wrong and all at once set about correcting them all.

The more things that are wrong with a child's behavior the more carefully we must go about trying to help him correct the faults. To be suddenly disapproved of in a wholesale fashion can only make him confused, irritated and unhappy.

What was all right yesterday has suddenly become wrong today. Yesterday's easy tolerance has disappeared for no reason that he can see, and he finds himself facing a running fire of correction and nagging, in a chilling atmosphere of continual disapproval.

Nine children out of ten respond to such treatment by becoming worse behaved than before or by becoming resentful, sullen, secretive and unhappy.

When suddenly it dawns on you that in a number of respects your child's conduct is not all it should be, remember that it will do no good to try to make him all over at once. Instead, decide which one of his faults most urgently demands correction and concentrate on helping him get rid of that one before you attempt to correct another.

If he is a young child under 7, try to help him by suggesting the right behavior without especially referring to what he does that is wrong.

If he is older, tell him frankly what you think ought to be changed and ask him to cooperate with you on a plan to meet the difficulty. Be sure to reward him with full appreciation and approval when he makes an effort to improve.

Today

Kingston: "Looking Forward." Lionel Barrymore's latest starring vehicle is a gem of artistic beauty in quality of the acting displayed and the flawless realism of the story as it unfolds on the screen. It's another visual picture of the depression as felt in England, and it depicts the struggles of a British concern to weather the storm. Lionel Barrymore is perfectly cast as a clerk in the concern, and he is given ample support by Lewis Stone in the role of the owner. Others in an exceptionally gifted cast include Colin Clive, Benita Hume, Elizabeth Allan and Phillips Holmes. Not exciting entertainment, but very much worth seeing.

Orpheum: "She Done Him Wrong" and "Tangled Destinies." The incomparable Mae West is the big noise of the first attraction, a rowdy tale of the nineties, that is packed full of entertainment value. Others in the cast are Gary Grant, Gilbert Roland, Noah Beery and Owen Moore. "Tangled Destinies" features Doris Hill and Lloyd Whitlock.

Broadway: "Hits and Misses" on the stage, and "Rackety Rax" on the screen. The stage show is presented by Helen Cashin, and features a cast of 50 people. "Rackety Rax," the movie version of the story by Joe Sayre, is one of the funniest talkies ever seen and heard on the screen. It is a farce show, with a story that concerns gangsters, racketeers and their troubles. A certain gang, headed by Victor McLaglen as the chieftain, decide they can clean up big money by running a college of their own. So they get a college, and publicity for the school is in keeping with the methods of modern racketeering. The football team is composed of pugs and gunmen, chorus girls are imported to pep up the school generally. Enjoyable entertainment without a serious moment.

Tomorrow.

Kingston: "Peg o' My Heart." Marion Davies, J. Farrell MacDonald, Onslow Stevens, Juliette Compton and Alan Mowbray are all members of the cast in this well known and often acted story of the little Irish girl, and her struggle for happiness. It is an interesting and gay show to see, for the old plot has been dressed up in new garments and a musical score has been written into the production. No effort has been spared to make the play elaborate and unsophisticated, and Miss Davies, in the starring role, does a brilliant bit of acting. A show that the whole family will enjoy.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS and SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — Here's encouragement for the girls who would like to emulate their screen fashion plate heroines in dressing. It's much less expensive now, unless prices zoom suddenly.

Constance Bennett's pictures are important as fashion parades as well as stories, and Connie rates on the list of Hollywood style leaders. If a girl wants to dress as Connie does in her pictures, she can do it easily enough on an allowance of $[illegible].

That's per costume, of course—or what did you think?

Some More, Some Less

The figure is based on the average cost of the 51 outfits that Connie wore in three recent films, and if you have any sneaking hunch that these movie gowns are faked of imitation materials you should take a peek at a Bennett wardrobe cost sheet.

In "Our Betters" Connie portrayed a rich woman with a wardrobe of just seven costumes that cost about $8,473. It included a wedding gown and real lace veil that set back the department $545.

When Connie got married in "What Price Hollywood?" her gown cost only $162.12. But that was just a movie star's wedding, you see.

The least expensive item on a Bennett picture wardrobe appears for the same picture—$12.55 for the waitress' outfit Connie wore before becoming an actress. Even her bathing suits cost more—$15 and $35 respectively. To play tennis in a costume befitting a style leader in "Our Betters" Connie required an expenditure of $198.

The most expensive item for the three pictures was the beaded evening gown and cape she wore in "Rockabye," cost $631.01. And the least costly, a grey crepe costume in the same film, was $59.95.

The Others Inherit

Connie's ensembles are worn again and again—not by Connie, but by lesser featured players, then by bit players, finally by extras.

But Walter Plunkett, studio designer, remodels them each time.

Tagging Major League Bases

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The Cleveland Indians have made their start for a new deal in the American League struggle but in their first game under Walter Johnson's management they failed to show any signs of overcoming their one conspicuous weakness—lack of hitting power.

The Indians won their first game for the "big train" yesterday but while the bats of the other American League clubs were booming out a thunder of base hits and home runs, they collected only five safeties and had to go ten innings to beat the seventh place St. Louis Browns, 1 to 0. In the tenth Mel Harder loaded the bases and was relieved by Oral Hildebrand, who retired the side and a few minutes later won his own game with a single that brought in Joe Vosmik with the only run.

Weak as this performance was, it left the Indians only a half game behind the fourth-place Philadelphia Athletics and one game behind the Chicago White Sox, who went into third place by splitting a double-header with Detroit while the A's lost a slugfest to Washington, 13 to 6. The five hit pitching of Milton Gaston and Al Simmons' slugging gave the Pale Hose the opener, 6-1, but they tossed away the second, 5-3, giving the Tigers four runs by errors. The Senators smashed out 19 hits off four Philadelphia pitchers while the A's best return gesture was Jimmie Foxx's 14th homer of the season.

Yanks, Sox Divide

The league leading New York Yankees and the last-place Boston Red Sox divided a bargain bill before 30,000 fans. Home runs were featured in both games. The Yanks tied the first game with three late homers, including Lou Gehrig's 13th and won 8 to 7 when Roy Johnson muffed a fly. Smead Jolley's homer with one on in the sixth and last inning gave the Red Sox an 11-9 triumph in the second clash.

A "comeback" rush by the Pittsburgh Pirates furnished the high spot of the National League program. The Pirates took two games from the second place St. Louis Cardinals, winning the first 11-7 with a ten run outburst in the ninth inning and the second 3-0 on Larry French's steady pitching.

Phillies Trim Giants

The league leading New York Giants meanwhile took a 7-5 trimming from the Phillies, who scored six runs against Hal Schumacher in the fourth inning. After going down 5-4 in the opening slugfest when Cincinnati scored four runs in the first, the Chicago Cubs came back to win their first game of the season in the Reds' park, 9 to 8.

The Brooklyn Dodgers and Boston Braves also divided their double bill and remained only a half game apart. Boston put over five runs in the fifth, with Randy Moore's homer as the climax, and took the opener 6-4. Good pitching by Van Mungo gave Brooklyn the second decision, 5 to 2.

Rensselaer Club Failed to Appear

The baseball game between the Kingston All Stars and Rensselaer Giants at the Kingston Fair Grounds Sunday did not materialize, because the Giants failed to put in an appearance, disappointing a large turnout of fans.

Today Booking Manager John McCardle explained that the upstate team did not arrive owing to an accident near Coxsackie. He said a telegram had been sent, explaining that the Giants would be unable to appear on account of the mishap, but that on account of the local telegraph office being closed, the message was not received until last night.

The management of the Kingston All Stars wishes to publicly apologize for not having been able to furnish a game.

Next Sunday the Stars will play the Albany Colored Giants at the Fair Grounds.

CONNELLY, RUBY GAME ENDS IN DISPUTE

The baseball game Sunday at St. Remy between Connelly A. C. and the Ruby Robins ended in dispute. With the score 15-0 in the sixth inning, Eddie Scherer, Connelly speed ball pitcher, left the mound to give the Robins a chance to get out of the goose-egg column. Chick Maurer replaced him and during his short stay on the hill, Ruby got a chance to put three men in scoring position. As the three trotted home a decision was made that the Robins disagreed with and left the field.

Next Sunday Connelly will play the Kaslich A. C. of Kingston, a club that is expected to put up a good battle with the nine from across the creek.

Hardwaremen Play Herzogs Tuesday

The City Baseball League game at the Athletic Field Tuesday evening will bring together the Schryver Lumbermen and the Herzog Hardwaremen. With the return of their star catcher, Jack Robins, the Lumbermen once again look like a real ball club and still have a chance of winning the first half of the loop. They need this game and their remaining games, one with the league-leading Repealers, to tie for first place.

The Lumbermen haven't announced their pitching selection yet, but undoubtedly Big Ed Wilson will get the assignment with Robins supporting him. Ed Flemming will do the flinging for the Hardwaremen; Harold Clayton the catching.

The Medicine Chest, not Medium Chest as stated heretofore, of 220 Foxhall avenue, is offering the box of King Stone cigars for the next home run.

IRISH BLOCK WINS GAME AT MONTGOMERY, 9-2.

"Meb" Lynch's Irish Block baseball team of Wilbur won at Montgomery Sunday afternoon by the score of 9-2. The Wilburites collected 17 hits off Coleman, one being a three bagger by Joe Wenzel. Cullen struck out 13 Montgomery batters. Next Sunday the Irishers go to Kerhonkson.

North Rondouters, 9-7

The North Rondout A. C. trimmed Sawkill, 9-7, Sunday at Terry's brickyard diamond. J. Fisher and Wolf pitched for the winners, Whane for the losers. The North Rondout Club wishes to publicly challenge the North Rondout Social Club and any other team in that class. Managers interested should phone 1867-M.

SPORT SLANTS
By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

Unless the Cleveland Indians recover their lost or antagonistic batting eyes, Wesley Ches Ferrell will have a more difficult time than usual collecting his annual quota of 20 or more victories, which may further distress him for the reason he is working for the first time on a base-clause contract.

Under its terms Ferrell receives a flat $12,000 for the 1933 season, plus $3,000 if he posts victory No. 20 in the standing of the pitchers.

The big North Carolina flinger recovered quickly from a kink in his right shoulder but had the misfortune to drop three somewhat close decisions in a row on Cleveland's first eastern trip. In those three games the Indians collected a grand total of only five runs off the Washington, Philadelphia and New York pitching, so that Ferrell did not have anything like a decent margin to work on.

His toughest setback was at the Yankee Stadium, where he waged a runless duel with Lefty Gomez for seven innings, only to have the world champions slide over three counters in the eighth to settle the outcome. In the opinion of Cleveland's general manager, Billy Evans, this losing performance was, nevertheless, Ferrell's best game of the spring.

"Wes had a lot of stuff and his fast ball was really fast for the first time this year," said Evans. "He's in good shape and despite bad breaks so far I look for him to win at least 20 games for us again. He has averaged about 23 for four straight seasons, a record that is surpassed only by the great Mr. Grove.

"By the way Grove looked as good against us as ever. We didn't get much more than a couple of loud fouls off him at Philadelphia."

Hildebrand Holds 'Em Up

Young Master Oral Hildebrand won his first six games in a row and paced the Cleveland pitching staff until the Yankees chose to emerge from their slugging slump to pounding him out of the box at the Yankee Stadium.

Since judgment on any pitcher's prowess cannot be based on what the world champions do to his delivery, there is no reason to alter the belief that Hildebrand ranks with the best young pitchers now employed in the American League.

He has courage, speed and a change-of-pace, essentials to any boxman's success, and he's one of the big reasons why the Cleveland club has not been distanced because of light stickwork.

Stadium Hard On Hitters

"If our hitters will only snap out of it and do as well as our pitchers, we will have something to say yet about the pennant," asserted Evans, "but we have to admit that playing in the new municipal stadium at Cleveland will cut from 20 to 40 points off most of our batter's marks this year.

"Take a fellow like Earl Averill, who hit over 30 home runs last year. He has hit only one so far. Drives that used to be good for the circuit in our old park are just big flies on our new grounds. But it will be just as tough for the visiting clubbers, too, and veterans like Babe Ruth, who are slowing up, will find it difficult covering so much extra ground."

Yesterday's STARS

By The Associated Press

Billy Herman, Cubs—Rapped Cincinnati pitching for three hits in each game of doubleheader.

Smead Jolley, Red Sox—Drove in six runs against Yankees, hitting two homers and three singles.

Johnny Vergez, Giants—Clouted two homers and single against Phillies, driving in four of team's five runs.

Oral Hildebrand, Indians—Drove in run that beat Browns 1-0 in tenth after pitching clever relief ball.

Gus Suhr, Pirates—Combed Cardinals' pitchers for two doubles and two singles.

Fred Schulte, Senators — Sent home six runs against Athletics with homer and two doubles.

Joe Stripp, Dodgers—Scored three of team's five runs in second game against Braves.

Milton Gaston, White Sox—Held Tigers to five hits to win opener of doubleheader 6-1.

Senecas Win Twice Against Wallkill

In a double-header at Wallkill Sunday the Kingston Senecas defeated Matty Deegans Medium Security Prison team by scores of 6-2 and 14-4. Johnny Cullen pitched the first game for the Senecas, allowing only six hits. Hank Cragan the second, holding the home club to 4 blows. Besides starring on the mound, Cragan hit three out of five in the second game and added to his glory with a home run.

The Senecas will play a return double bill with Wallkill on July 4.

KINGSTON TROJANS EDGED OUT AT CHICHESTER, 3-4.

The Kingston Trojans playing at Chichester Sunday lost to the village baseball team by the close score of 3-4. Uhl on the Trojan pitching mound had eight strikeouts, Ensist and Lane four and five, respectively, for the home club. Uhl gave eight hits, Ensist two and Lane four. Chichester is anxious for a return game with the Trojans. Next Sunday the Trojans go to Fleischmanns.

Maroon Defeated Again by Newburgh

The Kingston High School tennis varsity completed its season Saturday afternoon at Forsyth Park courts in a match with Newburgh Free Academy, which the Maroon lost 4-1. The match was one of the most sensational and hardest played that the Maroon has been in this season. Four out of the five matches went into three sets—two doubles and two singles.

Captain Bill Chazanof had a tough time taking the only match of the afternoon. He defeated Morrison and kept the locals from a blank. The Newburgh ace took the first set 8-6 but Chazanof came through to take the second, 6-2 and the third, 9-7. The last set was well played and would make any spectator hold his breath. Chazanof was in a bad way many times. Morrison had him set point on numerous occasions but the little dark haired captain managed to come through.

Turner was off form. He was defeated by Yasgoor in two sets and Wolven gave Moses a good run but lost after three sets.

In the doubles Captain Chazanof employed some strategy. He rearranged his double teams and took a gambler's chance on winning both doubles and taking the match. Chazanof and Turner usually worked together in doubles but they split and Chazanof worked with Macholdt and Turner with Wolven. Both doubles were long and Newburgh had a tough time taking them.

The summary:

Singles

Chazanof, Kingston defeated Morrison, 6-8, 6-2, 9-7.

Yasgoor, Newburgh defeated Turner, 6-3, 6-2.

Moses, Newburgh defeated Wolven, 3-6, 6-1, 7-5.

Doubles

Morrison and Moses, Newburgh defeated Chazanof and Macholdt, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3.

Pierce and Hardman, Newburgh defeated Turner and Wolven, 3-6, 6-2, 7-5.

Goodman Will Not Turn Professional

New York, June 12 (AP)—Johnny Goodman, sensational amateur winner of the 1933 National Open championship, isn't going to turn professional for at least two big reasons, although he might "cash in" on his brilliant victory at Chicago to the tune of $25,000 within the year.

The 22-year-old Nebraskan's two big objectives are to add the National Amateur championship to his laurels at Cincinnati this September, duplicating the rare "double" achieved only by Chick Evans and Bob Jones, thereby making it impossible for the United States Golf Association to leave him off the Walker Cup team again when the forces are assembled for a British invasion in 1934.

Truckers Play Tianos Tonight

Time of the baseball game between the Tiano All Stars of East Kingston and the Van Etten & Hogan Truckers at the Athletic Field this evening is 6:30. A large turnout of fans is expected. Opposing batteries will be Charlie Tiano and his brother, Jim, for the Tianos, Smokey Joe Johnson and Cleveland Thomas for the colored club.

Port Ewen Firemen Won on Sunday, 9-2

At Hercules diamond Sunday afternoon the Port Ewen Firemen proved too strong for the North Rondout Social Club, defeating the visiting nine by the tally of 9-2. Joe Mannello, pitching for Port Ewen, allowed two hits. Eddie Baker toeing for the North Rondouters was touched for nine, including a homer by Mannello with two men on.

Former Local Golfer Winning Matches

"She's one of the gamest women in golf," writes a prominent sports commentator of Mrs. Merton Enos, formerly of Kingston, who learned her game at Twaalfskill Club, this city, and is now one of the outstanding women golfers of the Albany Country Club.

Mrs. Enos, who is expected to have a big summer on the links, broke into the game five years ago, began to take it seriously three years ago, entered major competition for the first time last year and already has several prizes to her credit. It makes no difference how experienced the field is, she will put up a real fight for honors and usually manages to distinguish herself.

Ryder Cup Roster Completed

New York, June 12 (AP)—The Professional Golfers Association of America has completed its Ryder Cup roster and quelled a storm by selecting Billy Burke, National Open champion in 1931, for the last remaining place on the team.

FOURTH BINNEWATER

Fourth Binnewater, June 12—Mr. and Mrs. Tom Kelly of Kingston called on Mr. and Mrs. M. Freer. They also called to see Mrs. J. Freer on Sunday.

Mrs. Wright Maines and son, Bobby, Mrs. Martha Robinson and grandson, Cleon Robinson, spent Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. M. Freer. Mrs. Millie Walton also called.

Edwin Booth and little granddaughter, Lois, spent Friday in Rosendale and Kingston.

Mrs. Floyd Deitz, who was very sick for a few days, has fully recovered.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Binnewater Fire Company will serve a cold supper in the near future. The date will be announced later. The menu will consist of cold roast pork, potato salad, deviled eggs, lettuce, sliced cucumbers, tomatoes, jelly, tea biscuits and coffee, dessert, strawberry shortcake. Ice cream and strawberries will be on sale.

Mr. and Mrs. Wright Maines and sons, Alec and Bobby, spent Sunday evening with Mrs. J. Freer and family.

Everyone is enjoying bathing in the lakes these hot days and evenings.

Accident Case In Supreme Court

Judge Staley convened the May term of supreme court this morning at 10:30 o'clock after the week-end recess and No. 48, David D. Samson against Rita S. Levine was moved for trial. This is an action growing out of an automobile accident near the village of Ellenville on July 22, 1930. The action is to recover damages. Cleon B. Murray with N. LeVan Haver of counsel appeared for plaintiff and Andrew J. Cook appeared for defendant.

It was announced that No. 100, Herman Osmers against Ernest Mau, an action for goods sold and delivered, had been settled over the week-end. Lloyd R. LeFever, who appeared for plaintiff, stated that he had been informed by his client that a settlement had been made. Daniel Hoffman, who appeared of counsel for N. H. Fessenden, attorney of record for defendant, stated that he had no information in regard to a settlement. Judge Staley announced the case settled and it went off the calendar.

There were no additions to the day calendar. The calendar is 48 on trial; 96, 107, 25-A, 108, 34.

Daisy Supper June 14.

A Daisy Supper will be served in the assembly rooms, from 5 p. m. to 7:30 p. m. on Wednesday, June 14 by the Teachers of Trinity Lutheran Sunday School. The colors of the daisy will be used in decorating the tables and preparing the menu. As the supper is served a pleasing program of music will be rendered as arranged by Miss Sophie Schmidtkonz, chairman of the committee. The public is invited.

Committed to Jail

John P. Green, 34, of Shandaken, was committed to the Ulster county jail today by Justice Theron E. Townsend, to serve ten days on a charge of driving without a license.

In Memoriam.

In sad and loving memory of our dear father and husband, Alfred K. Steeger, who died five years ago today, June 12, 1928.

Surrounded by friends we are lonesome,
In the midst of our pleasures we are blue.
A smile on our face, still our heart aches,
Longing and longing for you.
It seems that nothing could part us,
But death with its strength would not do.
There is nothing left now but our heartache,
The yearning and longing for you.

MRS. SADIE STEEGER AND CHILDREN.

Memoriam

In loving memory of my dear sister, Mrs. Mary Flick, who departed this life nine years ago today, Sunday, June 11, 1924.

(Signed)
MRS. J. ROBERT KIERSTED

Financial and Commercial

New York, June 12 (AP).—Discretion apparently was considered the better part of valor in the stock market today and prices, although maintaining a steady to firm position, showed little buoyancy.

The American dollar again was soft in some leading foreign exchange markets. Previously a drop in dollar rates usually has been the signal for an upswing in share quotations, as well as advances in principal staples. Traders, however, exhibited considerable caution today in the face of European uncertainties. Wheat, corn and cotton were slightly easier at one time, although generally tending to follow a narrow range.

While the slump of American money to unprecedented low levels in terms of sterling and European gold currencies has occasioned mixed feelings in banking circles, it is believed in some quarters that the wild fluctuations of exchanges may do much to bring about a speedy settlement of the currency situation. The dollar is now at a discount of about 20 per cent in its relation to gold funds; in other words, it is worth around 80 cents. The question that is troubling bankers, exporters and importers is the point at which the gold value of the dollar will settle.

High banking officials have denied reports that the government was using a secret stabilization fund to put dollar rates where they will do the most good in negotiations with other countries. As a matter of fact, it is said, American currency is merely being permitted to find its own level.

Quotations given by Parker, McElroy & Co., members, N. Y. Stock Exchange, 120 Broadway, New York city; branch office, Stuyvesant Hotel.

New Voting District For Town of Ulster

A new voting district will be erected in the town of Ulster to accommodate the increase in population in the Roosevelt, Lincoln and Richmond Parks district. The town board took action to this effect at a meeting Saturday night, residents of the present district No. 2, voting at Lake Katrine, having called attention to the fact that the present district now has 1,200 voters.

The congestion not only made heavy work for the election board, but hundreds of voters in the new section were forced to go far out of their way in order to vote.

The new district will embrace that section extending from the city line to the westerly side of the West Shore Railroad tracks, approximately, but a committee has been named by the board to fix the boundaries definitely.

Town of Ulster Raises Fee For Carnivals

Carnivals will certainly have to be good if they make any money in the town of Ulster hereafter.

Following numerous complaints against carnivals, the town board of the town of Ulster took action on the matter at a meeting Saturday night. As a result of their deliberations a motion was passed raising the fee for carnivals from $20 a week, which it has been heretofore, to $100 a day.

ROAD IMPROVEMENTS AT THE HEAD OF WATSON HOLLOW

West Shokan, June 12.—During the latter part of the week notable road improvements were made toward the head of Watson Hollow, in charge of Foreman Charles Hesley. The grading and oil surfacing given the Bushkill road from Colange's store to the Moonhaw road intersection, brings the highest commendation from all users and wayside residents who every season previous have experienced the deluge of dust arising from every passing auto just as soon as a rain dried up. The job would have been complete had the oil held out enough to cover two uncompleted sections, one below and the other above the bridge. Protests are being voiced to the end that Commissioner Jordan may be enabled to yet procure enough oil for the purpose.

ACTIVITIES AT RONDOUT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The annual spring supper of the Ladies' Aid Society will be served in the chapel on Tuesday evening from 5 to 8 o'clock, and a fine menu has been prepared.

The communion service will be held in the church next Sunday morning. Preparatory services will be held Thursday evening.

The annual Children's Day exercises will be held in the church on Sunday morning, June 25.

CAPT. ALBRECHT AWAY ON FISHING EXPEDITION

Captain Edward H. Albrecht of the Kingston fire department and a party of friends are enjoying a fishing trip spent at Lake Sacandaga in northern New York. Among those with Captain Albrecht in his cabin on the shores of the lake are several Kingston young men. All report having a fine time and landing good catches of pike and other fish. They expect to return to Kingston within a few days.

William and James Carpenter of New York city are again at the Terwilliger camp on the west branch of the Butternutkill. The Carpenter brothers, who are great fishermen, maintain a boat near the lower end of the east basin.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Robeson of New York city were week-end guests at the home of Mrs. Mabel Robeson. Mr. Robeson is a lawyer with offices on Broadway, New York city.

A pleasing program was rendered by members of the Sunday school at the Children's Day exercises held in the Shokan Reformed Church Sunday morning. The auditorium of the church was beautifully decorated for the occasion, with mountain laurel blooms predominating.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gearon of New York city have returned to their summer home after an absence of two weeks in the city.

Automobile travel through the village was heavier than during any Sunday this spring and at times there was a continuous stream of cars passing the intersection of the north and middle boulevards. Included in the reservoir parade were a number of large trucks loaded with young folks, also a cavalcade carrying Boy Scouts from Long Meadow, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Kirk, Sr., were among the Newburgh people in this section over the week-end. The Kirk family has rented one of the Winchell bungalows on the heights.

Joseph Reilly of Brooklyn paid a brief visit to his country home in the village center last Saturday. Mr. Reilly, who is connected with the Brooklyn Eagle, expects to return soon to spend the summer in Shokan, according to his custom of long standing.

The streams of this section are getting very low and some of the smaller branches have dried up entirely. At least two days of steady rain is badly needed here at this time.

On June 13, 1890, the funeral took place of Mrs. Martin Winne, member of a family well known in Olive and Shandaken. Mrs. Winne before her marriage was Miss Amanda Snyder; she was a sister of the late Addison Snyder, who resided on the property now known as the Boiceville Lodge.

Wilfred Allen of Bergenfield, N. J., motored to Shokan and spent Saturday at the Allen place.

Mrs. Delia Eckert and daughters, Olive and Marguerite, of Mt. Vernon are sojourning at The Hemlocks on the mountain road. The Eckerts are former residents of the old village of Shokan.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Baylis of Peekskill were week-end guests at the home of Mrs. John Rainey near the corner. Mr. and Mrs. Baylis while in Shokan made a trip to Davenport, where they have real estate interests.

The June meeting of the local unit of the Home Bureau will be held at the residence of Mrs. C. A. Winchell on Tuesday. Bureau plans for next fall will be talked over and a pot-luck luncheon served at this meeting.

All signs point to a prosperous summer season for the merchants and boarding housekeepers of the reservoir section. The hot weather is sending people out of the city earlier than usual and more of them are coming every day. Moreover, the Ashokan is becoming increasingly popular as a recreation spot, with scores of picnic and fishing parties frequenting the parks, boulevards and surrounding woodlands every week-end.

Robert B. Peck has returned to New York city after enjoying a brief vacation from his duties on the Herald-Tribune staff.

Prospects for a big hay crop do not look very encouraging at the moment though a few heavy showers during the next two weeks would undoubtedly make for pretty fair cutting in early July. The grass in low-lying fields looks good but drouth conditions are in evidence on the uplands.

The strawberry supper which the Ladies' Aid Society of the Reformed Church is going to hold on Wednesday evening is expected to draw a good crowd to the church hall. While home-grown strawberries will be the chief epicurean lure at this affair, other tempting edibles will be included in the meal.

Loyal Workers Meet

Loyal Workers Sunday School Class of Clinton Avenue M. E. Church will hold its regular monthly meeting in Epworth Parlors on Tuesday evening, June 13, at 8 o'clock. All members are asked to be out.

INTEREST IN FORMING OF JUNIOR SYMPHONY

Much interest is being shown in the formation, during the summer months of a Junior Symphony Orchestra in Kingston, so that the young people of the community studying and playing any of the instruments in the orchestra may have the necessary training to make it possible for them to enter the full orchestra and be able to play all of the programs as given.

For this purpose, Mrs. Florence Wolfert Cubberly, concertmeister of the Kingston Symphony Orchestra, will have charge of the Junior Orchestra during vacation. Mrs. Cubberly has had many interested inquiries as to time and place of classes, and other details and has already a working nucleus for the organization.

In order to have the entire group in readiness to take up practice in time to get in eight or ten weeks' study, it is important that parents confer as soon as possible with Mrs. Cubberly—telephone 859-J.

On Thursday, June 15, and Thursday, June 22, those who have arranged to take up the work and those wishing to register are asked to meet Mrs. Cubberly at Leventhal Hall, 288 Wall street, between the hours of 4 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

The plan is to have the first rehearsal the last week in June, but there will be a later announcement of the exact date and hour.

HEAVY BLOOM SIGN OF LARGE APPLE CROP

Albany, N. Y., June 12 (AP)—The heavy bloom of the Baldwin apple as well as several of the minor varieties and the apparent heavy set of the fruit give promise of a fine apple production in New York state this year, the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets reported today.

Production in three other fruits —peaches, cherries and pears, probably will be light, it is said.

A severe infection of peach leaf curl over the entire state has injured the peach crop, with the production probably to be about 1,134,000 bushels compared with 1,663,000 bushels last year.

The cherry production is expected to be far short of last season's heavy crop, the indicated condition at present being reported as only 42 per cent of normal compared with about 83 per cent of normal last June.

Pear production is estimated to be about 840,000 bushels this year compared with 1,745,000 in 1932.

IMPRESSIVE CHILDREN'S DAY AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

The Children's Day service at St. John's Episcopal Church was an unusually impressive service. The little folks and older children of the church school had the entire charge of the service, with the exception of such small parts of morning prayer as must be in charge of the officiating clergyman. Frederic Holcomb, acting as master of ceremonies, announced the program which, following the reading of the psalms, the Old and the New Testament lessons by members of the school, included a number of hymns sung not only very sweetly but clearly by the youngest children of the school, and a tiny playlet, "Flowers and Children's Day" by a group of junior girls all given on the steps of the chancel. An excellent sermonette on "Loyalty", written by the young preacher, also was given by a member of the school. All went as smoothly as any other regular church service.

TRIANGLE RESTAURANT UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

Management of the Triangle Restaurant, Albany avenue and East St. James street, has been taken over by William Lester. Mr. Lester has managed the Terminal Lunch on Crown street for the past two months. He is an experienced restaurant and lunch room man, having been with Al Gibson for several years when the latter was proprietor of the New Senate Lunch on upper Fair street. Mr. Lester's many friends are confident that he will succeed in his new venture. Mr. Lester will serve regular dinners at a low, popular price, at the same time giving a complete ala carte service.

TWO LOCAL POLICEMEN BEING CONGRATULATED

Two members of the Kingston police force are wearing broad smiles these days as they are receiving the congratulations of their friends over additions made to their families. Officer Peter J. Camp and wife of 46 West Pierpont street are welcoming a son, Peter J. Jr., born at the Benedictine Hospital; and Officer Ernest Boss and wife, a daughter, Lois Ann, born at their home, 28 Ann street.

DIXIE MINSTREL TO BE GIVEN ON TUESDAY

Circle No. 2 of the Elmendorf Street Presbyterian Church will present "The Dixie Minstrels," given by the Men's Club of the Franklin Street A. M. E. Zion Church on Tuesday evening, June 13, at 8 o'clock, to which the public is invited. A fine program has been arranged for the show.

THE ROVER

A FLYER IN AUGERS

© 1933, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

WHO is that young lady?" John Ames asked; "the one with the greyhound," and both his tone and his eyes had lost their bored expression.

"She's a live producer," the captain of the "bell-hops" enthusiastically stated. "She comes into the hotel every Wednesday afternoon for tea and she tips like the rest of the family. Her brother's the cleanest sport in town."

"Who is she?" the black-haired John Ames repeated with a smile.

"It's Miss Greenwood," replied the mop-headed captain. "Say, sue's the sweetest looker that comes into the Tyler Avenue hotel. Her old man used to bring her when she was just a little kid; but he's dead. He was a good sport, too."

"Are the Greenwoods in business?" and Ames watched the attractive girl until she was lost in the maze of fashionable shoppers.

"I should say so some!" bragged the captain, who was intense in his local patriotism. "Greenwood Square Hole Auger company, half a million dollars. How do you like the town?"

"A little better," acknowledged Ames. "I think I shall stay a while."

Chapter II.

"Have you any square-hole augers?" asked Ames, in the leading hardware store.

"Greenwood or Diggins?" asked the languid clerk in return.

"Which is the better?" Ames interestedly inquired.

"Not much difference," said the clerk, examining a fingernail. "Diggins' is a dollar cheaper, but it's lighter weight."

"I see," mused Ames. "Competitive proposition, eh? The Greenwood is manufactured here, I believe."

"Both," and the clerk looked wearily out of the window. "Would you like to look at them?"

"No, I think I'll take one of each," decided Ames. "You may send them around to the Tyler Avenue hotel," and he reached for his pocketbook. He pondered a moment. "Which is the larger concern?"

"Diggins," replied the clerk, yawning as he prepared to make out a sales slip.

Ames sat up with his two square-hole augers until 4 o'clock in the morning, and when he arose, he hunted up a patent lawyer.

Chapter III.

"Can't take on anything more just now," promptly decided President Diggins, of the Diggins Mortising Auger company, though he nevertheless cast another interested glance at the sketches Ames had made for him.

"There's nothing aida, in competition like the addition of up-to-date devices," pleasantly urged Ames.

Diggins, who was a bony-faced man of forty-five, considered that argument gravely, as he did all gravely advanced suggestions.

"I'll admit that a machine like this, if it were practical, would be a good advertisement, but what we need is a dividend producer."

"That's what I consider this," argued Ames, taking a speculative survey of the office. It was severely furnished, and bore the marks of good business system and concentration. "A motor attachment for large boring would solve, what is now a difficult problem in heavy wooden construction. A feed wire can be cut in, by the electric light company, within never over half a block from any important work."

Diggins shook his head.

"It's tempting," he admitted, "but this company is concentrated on the manufacture of ordinary square-hole augers. In fact," and he smiled, "we'd like to manufacture them all."

"Competition very keen?" suggested Ames, now covertly interested on Diggins' hard lips.

"Pretty fierce," the man acknowledged, with vexation on his brow. "To tell the truth, there'll never be big money in the business for anyone, as long as there's two of us."

Ames reached for one of his pencil sketches, and elaborated a detail.

"Young Greenwood's new in the business, isn't he?" he observed.

"Father took him out of college three years ago, and died shortly afterwards," Diggins replied, again with that vexation on his brow. "By George, that young fellow holds on desperately!" added Diggins determinedly.

Ames smiled as he sketched.

"He might hold on indefinitely," he stated. "Sometimes these young fellows do."

"Oftener they don't!" snapped Diggins. "Young Greenwood has qualities that are bound to get him in the end. He tries to make the auger business artistic. The old man had kid glove methods, but the young fellow's idiotically extravagant, fancy labels and embossed stationery, and such things. Why, he even has a pigskin waste basket with a gold monogram, in his office. A fellow with such ideas can't be a practical business manager."

Ames laughed.

"My fancy motor auger might appeal to him," he speculated.

"Not at the price you wanted to hold me up for," chuckled Diggins. "The Greenwood company will never pay royalty and a ten-thousand dollar bonus on an untried device, for which you haven't even a patent."

"The application I filed yesterday protects it," returned Ames easily. "I think I'll see him."

"Do!" urged Diggins. "Good Lord, I hope he takes it, and ties up some money in it. I might get him quicker."

Chapter IV.

John Ames smiled as he recognized the notorious pigskin waste basket with the gold monogram, and he smiled, too, as he inspected the immaculately groomed young Richard Greenwood, who wore a gardenia, and had a gold-mounted desk set in front of him.

"I have an improvement in square-hole boring machinery, which I should like to try out," began Ames, approaching Margaret Greenwood's brother with a far different proposition from the exaggerated one he had presented to Diggins.

"Sit down," invited young Greenwood, whose manners were pleasant and whose speech was suave. Also, he had an eager eye, which Ames rather liked.

"It's a motor auger," explained Ames lightly, laying down his sketches.

Young Greenwood looked over the drawings with quick comprehension, then he passed them back.

"It might be a thoroughly practical device, though it would have a restricted sale, as compared with our regular product," he commented. "However, the Greenwood company is not now in a position to take it up."

"I don't ask you to," responded Ames. "First of all, I'm curious to satisfy myself with its possibilities. All I would propose, just now, would be to experiment, in some out of the way corner of your shop, until I can prove the thing to be mechanically feasible. Then, if you like it, we can talk business."

Young Greenwood pondered the matter carefully, meanwhile inspecting the polished Ames with a growing cordiality.

"I think we might be able to arrange that," he decided.

Chapter V.

"Looks like a failure, Rick," said Ames, as they lunched in the busy grill room of the Tyler Avenue hotel. "I've worked three weeks with the blooming thing, and I can't seem to simplify it."

"I wouldn't give it up, John," urged young Greenwood. "I'd feel lonesome to see your corner unoccupied."

"Hello, Ames!" hailed a solid looking gray-haired man, with stern eyebrows, and a crisp mouth. "How are you, Greenwood?"

"How d'do, Cuspard," returned both Ames and Greenwood.

"Nice chap," commented Ames. "You don't buy your tool steel from him."

"I don't believe in feeding the enemy," laughed Greenwood.

"He's the biggest gun in the tool steel game, isn't he?"

"By all odds," replied Rick Greenwood. "He's worth about three millions. Hello, Walter!"

"Hello, boys!" greeted a thin man with a network of wrinkles between his eyes. He stopped on his way to his table, and shook hands heartily with Ames. "Great billiards you played with Tullingham last night. Glad to see you beat Hal. He's too cocky about his three-cushion game."

"Nice bunch of fellows on Diggins' board of directors," observed Greenwood, when Henderson had passed on. Cuspard and Walter and Tullingham are all men with heavy interests who can still enjoy life."

"Yes," agreed Ames with a smile, and hesitated for a moment. "I've formed a very agreeable acquaintanceship here, Rick. I chum with eight fine fellows, besides yourself, and they're all on Diggins' board of directors."

Greenwood looked at him with startled speculation.

"That's curious," he said, reflecting that Ames had been given access to the Greenwood factory for three weeks.

"Yes," again admitted Ames. "I've been learning all I can about the square-hole auger industry."

Again Greenwood studied him critically.

"I didn't know you were interested," he observed.

"I'm interested in all business problems," Ames told him. "It worries me to see a big commercial waste. Square-hole augers are a necessity. There's a constant sale for them, and nobody makes any money. That's wrong."

"By George, I didn't make the condition," said Greenwood earnestly. "When my father died, we were making money, but the moment I took hold of the business, Diggins began to cut prices."

"Naturally," laughed Ames. "He wanted the field to himself."

"He can't have it!" declared Greenwood sharply. "I may let reductions down to our present figure, and then I quit. Diggins cheapened his product a trifle, and went still lower; but I wouldn't do it."

"Good boy," approved Ames. "He's probably taken a lot of business from you."

"We're about hold our own," asserted Greenwood, with little knots of muscles working in his jaw. "My father made the first square-hole auger, and I'll keep that business going with the same standard of quality the governor maintained, if we only turn out one auger a year, and I'll sharpen every bit as the governor always did."

Ames broke bread.

"You'll win," he prophesied. "Diggins is spending a barrel of money in advertising, and his agents are known as liberal entertainers. Rick, how much will you give me for ridding you of the Diggins Mortising Auger company?"

"Where do you keep it?" laughed Greenwood. "Frankly, John, even if your offer were in earnest, I'd be embarrassed. I haven't drawn but one-fourth of my salary during the past year."

"If you had control of the Diggins company, I guess you could raise a few thousand, couldn't you?" smiled Ames, much as if he were still joking.

"Come out to dinner tonight and talk it over," invited Greenwood, laughing. "I have a mighty pretty sister I want you to meet."

"I accept with pleasure," replied John Ames, who for three weeks had awaited this invitation.

Chapter VI.

Yes, she was pretty, John Ames admitted, as the stately Margaret swept across to him. She was more than pretty; she was stunningly beautiful.

"How Did You Come to Buy That Thing, Rick?" He Asked.

"You are most welcome," she said in a low, well modulated voice, of peculiar richness, and she extended a long, tapering hand.

"I know you well through one of your most devoted admirers," he told her.

"Rick," she guessed, laughing, and her laugh had even more of that fascinating timbre which had been apparent in her greeting. "He bores everybody that way. He needs a girl of his own."

"You've spoiled me, sis," Rick returned, patting her on the shoulder.

Mrs. Greenwood entered, a merry looking woman, who seemed as if her life had been cast in pleasant places. She elevated her brows, just a trace, as she saw John Ames, and when she had greeted him, and had finished with the usual cheerful conventionalities, and the guest had gone over to the piano with Margaret, she turned to her son with sparkling enthusiasm.

"Where did you get him?" she demanded.

"Don't know him from Adam, Mummy," Rick shamelessly confessed. "He's never mentioned his private affairs to me, but I've been around him long enough to know that he's all right."

"Indeed he is," promptly agreed Mrs. Greenwood. "He's the handsomest thing I ever saw outside of the family. Aren't they a stunning couple, Rick?"

"At it again," teased her son. "You're always picking the scenery for Sis."

"Well, she's so beautiful herself, that she should have a handsome man," worried Mrs. Greenwood, "and she's always going around with some homely fellow."

"That isn't fair, mother," protested Rick. "Margaret's bunch do run small to the dozen, come to think of it, but they're a corking nice lot of fellows."

"She wouldn't have them if they weren't," instantly defended Mrs. Greenwood. "Don't you know anything about him?" she eagerly whispered.

Rick laughed so heartily that the pair at the piano glanced over.

They were discussing music most volubly over there, and Margaret had lightly run over two or three passages from memory, to show the similarity between a composition of Chopin's and one of Paderewski's.

"The similarity is there," granted Ames, "but it can't be called plagiarism, for both had their sources in Bach. If you have Bach here, I think I can find the original."

She moved lightly to the well-stacked shelves, and, with eager interest brought him the volume of Bach. He found the passage, and played it for her.

"That's glorious!" she exclaimed, with a sparkle of admiration in her big eyes and in her voice.

He glanced at her quickly. That peculiar vibration in her voice had thrilled him. She caught his look, but there was no change in her.

"Of course you couldn't play it again that way," she regretted.

"I'm afraid not," he smiled, yielding the seat to her. "I know you sing."

"Simple little melodies," she admitted.

"Sing him that Pretten Lassen thing, sis," called Rick from across the room.

"'Mit Deinen Blauen Augen'?" she laughed, as she searched for it. "Will you never tire of it, Rick?"

"Not so long as I'm fond of blondes," he grinned.

She found the music and sang; simply, expressively, but with that wonderful timbre which had so held him since her first word.

Was there a certain coldness about her? There was fire in the depths of her eyes, there was warmth in her lips, there was throbbing life in her voice; and yet, when dinner was called, and he took her hand to assist her from the piano, he was puzzled again.

She was an entertaining companion, a clever talker and a flattering listener; and they liked each other.

"Well, Rick, let's get down to business," suggested Ames, as the two young men walked into the library after dinner. "How about that $25,000?"

Young Greenwood's brow lost its boyish smoothness.

"What particular $25,000 do you mean?" he inquired, in the tone of one who has learned to regard that amount of money respectfully.

"The $25,000 for ridding you of the competition of the Diggins Mortising company."

"You do that and I'll hand you the money so quick it'll scare you," promised Rick, laughing.

"Suppose you put that offer in writing," proposed Ames quietly.

"I believe you are in earnest!" declared Greenwood, surprised.

"Of course I am," answered Ames. "That's what you need, and we'll have it for you."

"Thanks," mocked Greenwood, returning to his opinion that the whole thing was a joke. "Just how will you bring this miracle about?"

"That would be telling," smiled Ames. "Will you write me that offer?"

"I think I'll have to humor you," laughed Rick, and, going to his desk wrote the letter.

When they returned to the music room, Ned Cross was there, a little light-complexioned fellow with a great fund of laughing good humor; and Margaret was chatting most gaily with him. Ames watched her with pleasure not unmixed with envy. No, she was not cold.

When Ames left that night, Margaret and he had become the best of friends.

"You'll come again," she cordially invited him.

"As often as I may," he laughed, thrilled as he looked into her eyes, and heard her voice; and yet, when they shook hands in parting—well, he was puzzled.

Chapter VII.

"From that report, I conclude that we are to again pass our dividends?" snapped J. E. Cuspard, his iron-gray eyebrows bristling.

"It is still necessary," acknowledged President Diggins, looking resentfully at his board of directors. They seemed particularly unpleasant this afternoon.

"It has been necessary for nearly three years!" objected Walter Henderson, the 65th director with the multiplicity of wrinkles between his eyes.

Diggins' hard-boned face became harder.

"As I have so often explained, we have keen competition," he declared, again resentfully. "Until that is eliminated, we can scarcely show a profit."

"At present we show a deficit!" grimly criticised big Hal Tullingham, who was an extensive coal operator, and was impatient of any northern proposition.

"You can't conduct a campaign of this sort without heavy expense, and some loss," argued Diggins. "We've gradually monopolized the market, and, when we have finally shut out competition, we shall be able to pay fancy dividends."

"I don't believe it," again snapped Cuspard, rising, and jamming his hands in his trousers pockets. "Diggins, you started after young Greenwood's scalp two and a half years ago, and you've been promising us, every three months, that you'd have him out of the way by the next quarterly meeting. He's still making augers!"

"He's operating at a loss," retorted Diggins. "The end has to come some time, and we can stand the strain better than he. We have more capital."

"I object!" wheezed the asthmatic old president of the First National bank. "We have double his capitalization, but we haven't any more cash! It's my opinion we have less! we're in debt!"

"So is Greenwood!" growled Diggins.

"How do you know?" demanded Cuspard.

"It's impossible for him not to be," argued Diggins. "He's a wasteful young fellow, who spends money on such fool office embellishments as pigskin waste baskets with gold monograms!"

"If he's in debt, I don't know it!" wheezed the president of the First National. "The only paper of his that ever found itself through my place is checks, and none of them ever came back!"

J. E. Cuspard stood up again.

"Somebody's been making monkeys of us!" he declared, without being too specific. "I've been picking up my paper every morning for two years, to look for the bankruptcy of the Greenwood Square-Hole Auger company, and, by George, I believe we're going to beat them to it!"

"I believe it myself," snarled a weasened old director with three absurd hairs on his head. "Our concern's in a rotten condition! Why don't you consolidate with Greenwood?"

"There's no terms to be made with him," complained Diggins. "He has fool young notions of pride! He won't stand for any alterations in the name of his father's firm, nor would he share the management of the consolidation. When I found him so bullet-headed, I refused to talk any more with him."

A stolid looking fat director who had not yet taken part in the discussion, now spoke.

"Oh, h—l!" he said.

"I've gone just far enough with this thing Diggins!" announced Cuspard angrily, and Diggins felt a chill wave in the room, for Cuspard was the principal stockholder. "I've heard so long that this fool college kid was tottering, that I'm going to find out about it! I move this meeting adjourn for one hour!"

"Second the motion!" wheezed the president of the First National.

Chapter VIII.

"Now, Ames, I'll take that share of stock," agreed Cuspard, popping into the lobby of the Tyler Avenue hotel.

"Here's your hundred dollars."

"It's already assigned," replied Ames, producing the document in question. "I knew you'd be back after it."

Cuspard glanced hastily at the certificate and shoved it in his pocket.

"Come on," he said, and he led the way to his automobile. "Look here, Ames," he demanded, as they whirled down the street, "what's your interest in this?"

"Three-fold," explained Ames pleasantly, and with no hesitation. "First, I have an aversion, which amounts to a passion, to wasted business opportunities; second, I have developed a sincere admiration for Rick Greenwood; third, I'm to get $25,000 if the competition is removed from the square-hole auger business."

For the first time that day J. E. Cuspard laughed.

"That's rich," he admitted. "The boys will enjoy that when I tell them."

Young Richard Greenwood looked up in surprise as Cuspard and Ames plunged into his office.

"Young man I want to see your books," Cuspard demanded.

"What!" gasped young Greenwood, with a look from Cuspard to his friend Ames.

"I have a right to see them," asserted Cuspard crisply. "I'm a stockholder in this company," and he tossed down his certificate.

Greenwood glared at Ames with contracted brows.

"You've done this!" he angrily charged.

"I bet you," grinned Ames. "Business is business, Rick, and it's pretty cold-blooded."

"I'm in a hurry," interposed Cuspard. "The Diggins company's board of directors is waiting for certain information."

Young Greenwood, with little knots working in the muscles of his jaw, first rang for his bookkeeper, and then decided to go himself. He came in a moment later, with a huge armful of books, and slammed them on the desk, meanwhile glaring fiercely at John Ames.

"Help yourself!" he hissed.

"All right," accepted Cuspard with a chuckle, and coolly sat down at Greenwood's desk, while the young president of the Greenwood company went to the window and fidgeted on the pane, and John Ames sat down, and smiled and smiled.

There was one thing about J. E. Cuspard. He knew a bookkeeper's book from cover to cover, with his eyes shut; and the way he sailed through the Greenwood ledger was a joy to the Greenwood bookkeeper, who had followed in, to hover over the process. She had streaks of gray in her hair, and she had kept those books like a set of engravings since the elder Greenwood had put them in her charge, twenty years before. Cuspard looked up once, to see her standing there.

"Yours?" he queried.

She nodded.

"They're great!" he told her, and went on with his job. Presently he looked up again. "Let me see your balance sheets of about this date, one, two, and three years ago," he directed.

"Yes, sir," she said with alacrity, for J. E. Cuspard was a nice man even though Greenwood didn't like him. She went to Rick to find out. "He wants to see the balance sheets," she whispered.

"All right, Mary, show them to him," he ordered, in a queer mixture of curtness for Cuspard, and affection for Mary.

Fifteen minutes later J. E. Cuspard folded a piece of paper, and stuck it in his pocket and stalked out of the door. John Ames, smiling serenely, strolled out after him; for the atmosphere of that office was too tense for a traitor.

Half an hour later J. E. Cuspard came back, followed by the serenely smiling John Ames. Cuspard threw a huge bunch of documents on the table.

"Would you like to have this junk?" he inquired of young Greenwood, who had risen, at his desk, to resent this second imposition.

"What is it?" blurted Greenwood, backing away from it.

"Eighty-five per cent of the stock of the Diggins Mortising Auger company," explained Cuspard. "The boys brought it with them to the meeting today, and I just went up to make a collection of it."

"I don't understand!" faltered the young president, seeking the eyes of John Ames; but that traitor was grinning out of the window on which Greenwood had drummed.

"Take it," urged Cuspard. "Consolidate the concerns, run a bluff competition with them; do anything you please. We're busy men, and tired of fussing with it."

The blood began to come back to Rick's cheeks. He drew the certificates toward him.

"I don't understand," he again faltered.

"You'll get on by and by," chuckled Cuspard. "Young man, I want to congratulate you," and grasping Rick's limp hand, he shook it briskly. "You've kept 90 per cent of your business, you don't owe a cent, and you're running a three-year-old automobile. Take that stock and give us ten-year notes for it."

"I'm afraid I haven't capital to swing both companies," worried Greenwood.

"You can get : you want at the First National," advised Cuspard, looking around the room. "Where's that pig-skin wastebasket with the gold monogram? Oh, yes, here it is. How did you come to buy that thing, Rick?"

"To express my attitude toward my father's business," Rick explained, smiling. "By the way, what about Diggins?"

"Oh, I'd give him a good job," decided Cuspard, as he went out of the door. "You better give Ames his twenty-five thousand."

Rick walked over and shook John Ames by the hand. They stood there chuckling at each other like two fools.

Chapter IX.

Rick's Mummy was giving a "party" in honor of Rick's triumph. John Ames, still puzzled, watched Margaret in the midst of a group of her admirers, and suddenly realized why he had been puzzled; why there had never been between Margaret and himself the intense attraction which can ripen into love.

A dapper little friend of Ned Cross was introduced to her; and John saw the handshake which passed between them. He saw, too, the light in her eyes, which had never been in his own.

Queer he had not realized it before. This was Nature's eternal effort at readjustment. Something within the tall Margaret Greenwood, of which she was entirely unconscious, made it impossible for her to ever love a tall man; and something within the tall John Ames had made it impossible for him to love the beautiful and attractive Margaret Greenwood.

"I think I shall be going away tomorrow," he told her at the close of the evening.

"Oh, no!" she protested, genuinely pained. "We shall miss you. We've been such good friends!"

Again he felt the thrill of her voice and saw the fire beneath the chill of her eyes and noted the red fullness of her lips.

"I guess I'm doomed to be a wanderer," he lightly said, and shook hands with her in farewell.

His own hand came away willingly, but he was no longer puzzled!

POULTRY

FORCED PULLET IS NOT BEST PRODUCT

Should Have Time to Develop Necessary Stamina

"Pullets should be given every opportunity to develop normally without being forced, in order that they may have the body vigor to withstand long and continuous period of heavy egg production," says O. C. Ufford, extension poultryman for the Colorado agricultural college.

"It is not good practice," he says, "to force growth by the use of a high protein diet over the entire growing period.

"Birds that have received such a diet will start laying a month or six weeks earlier than the normal maturing period for the breed, but they do not have the body growth that enables them to stand up under heavy egg production over a long period of time."

For pullets on a summer range, a growing mash of ground grains containing 10 per cent meat scraps and 5 per cent bone meal, is suggested. This may be kept before them all the time in outdoor hoppers. The hoppers should be so constructed that very little mash can be wasted, and the hoppers should never be allowed to run empty, it is stated.

This growing mash may be kept before the pullets until they are three or four months old, depending on their development. Then, in order to prevent too rapid development, the percentage of meat scraps may be greatly reduced by adding ground oats, barley, corn meal or bran to the growing mash mixture. Reduction of protein allows the pullets to grow on top without stimulating the growth of the egg-producing organs.

"This method of handling pullets enables them to put on body weight and fat, and when they come into winter production they will be able to produce steadily because of their vigor and vitality," Ufford explained.

Too Much Sunshine Is Not Good for Chicks

While sunshine is necessary in the development of chicks, one should not overlook the fact that during the hot summer months protection from the hot sun is absolutely necessary. One reason why late hatched chicks fail to thrive is because of failure to keep them supplied with shade. Chicks that are compelled to remain in a close hot coop in the heat of summer because of no other protection are not getting the best possible treatment. The air under shade trees is fresh and cooler; there is less danger from mites and they are closer to green food and insect life.

If summer shade is not provided by trees and bushes the next best thing to do is to plant patches of sunflowers or corn. It is of course necessary to keep the chicks away from it until it gets a fair start. After the plants have grown to a sufficient height the chickens can run in them with practically no injury to the crop. In fact there is no objection to growing a crop of chickens and corn on the same piece of ground. This can be easily done by erecting temporary fences and confining the chicks to a portion of the yard or it may mean the removal of the chickens to new yards more suitable for summer growth. On the farm this latter method can usually be employed.—Missouri Farmer.

Feather Pulling

The feather-pulling habit is usually caused by overcrowding. Another cause is the taste of blood, which may result from accident or disease. When hens, and especially roosters taste blood they become part cannibal. Feather pulling is the natural result for the birds soon find that there is a drop of blood at the bottom of the quill they pull, and they have been known to practically eat a weak member of the flock alive. The best remedy is to kill the cannibals and segregate the victims as soon as it is seen that they cannot protect themselves. Out of door exercise and change of feed will do much to stop the trouble.—Montreal Herald.

Curing Scaly Leg

The shanks and upper surfaces of the toes of fowls are protected by horny overlapping scales. A little mite, called by scientists sarcoptes mutans, has a habit of burrowing under these scales, causing an irritation and making the feet sore. Its presence is detected by the loosening of the scales and accumulation of crusty matter under them. The condition is corrected by dipping the feet in a mixture of linseed and kerosene oils, equal parts, or by anointing with vaseline.

Rhode Island Red Bantam

The general rules and practices applied to the raising of "large" poultry hold good in handling the Bantams also. The Rhode Island Red Bantam is coming to the front as a popular member of the midget group and some good specimens of these birds are to be seen occasionally in showrooms. They have not been admitted to the American Standard, but it is likely that in course of time they will be recognized. The males weigh about two pounds.

Four Automobile Accidents Here

Four automobile collisions in which one person was reported injured were reported to the police department over the week-end in Kingston. Saturday evening a Chevrolet coach being operated by Marion Clark of 342 Wall street struck the rear of a Chevrolet sedan driven by John P. Lamb of 17 Clinton avenue, on Broadway, near Railroad avenue. No one was injured but both cars were damaged.

Sunday morning a Ford sedan driven by Rose F. Walhaf of Gloversville and a Moon sedan of Robert Strahlendorf of Van Deusen street collided on Broadway, near the Columbia restaurant. Both cars were somewhat damaged. One of the cars struck an electric light pole, damaging it slightly. No one was reported injured.

Raymond A. Snyder of Ulster Park was cut about the head when his Ford coach was in collision with a car driven by Joseph Cecelia of 66 Crane street at St. James and Clinton avenue on Saturday afternoon.

Cars driven by Arthur Opitz of 44 Abeel street and Mrs. Harold Rakov of 273 Clinton avenue, collided Saturday evening on Malden Lane. One of the cars damaged a street sign on the corner. No one was reported injured.

Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary Held June Meeting

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. held its June meeting on Friday at the Y. M. C. A. Camp at Glenerie. Cars left the Y at 10:30 a. m. Each member brought her lunch and several brought friends. Tables were spread on the large porch of the Charles Ramsey Lodge and the business meeting was held while still seated about the tables.

Mrs. N. H. Fuller had charge of devotions. Mrs. Rufus Kelder reported 18 pillow slips, two counterpanes and three sheets mended by her committee.

Two new members were present and welcomed, Mrs. A. Van Etten of 77 Cedar street and Mrs. George Boss of 99 Cedar street, both of Clinton Avenue M. E. Church.

It was voted to pay $25 on the Auxiliary pledge, also to entertain the Ulster County P.-T. A. Conference serving the luncheon to the delegates. This conference occurs in October.

It was decided to serve a turkey supper in February and a supper of some sort in the fall.

Mrs. D. N. Secore gave a most vivid description of her visit to the World's Fair in Chicago. Mrs. Secore's account of her trip was of much interest to all present and served as a topic of conversation during the social hour.

Cars carried the guests to their homes in time for the evening meal.

WATSON HOLLOW INN PROVING POPULAR

The extremely warm weather of the past few days has brought out many city people who seek comfort in the country. One of the popular places during the past few days has been Watson Hollow Inn on the south Ashokan Boulevard overlooking the Reservoir near West Shokan. This popular inn was filled with guests over the week-end and in addition a large number of tourists stopped for dinner and refreshments. This season at Watson Hollow Inn is particularly enjoyable to those who enjoy the beauty of mountain laurel which is now in the height of blossom. Not only in the vicinity of the Inn but throughout the mountains laurel is now in full flower.

FLIES BACK TO COLLEGE IN BROTHER'S AIRPLANE.

George Krayem of East Strand, who has been spending the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Krayem, returned to the Renaselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N. Y., this noon. He made the trip back to college with his brother, Edward Krayem, in the latter's airplane, taking off from the Kingston Airport.

CHILD FATALLY BURNED BY FALL IN HOT WATER

Patsy Barreca, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barreca of Highland, died at Vassar Hospital, Poughkeepsie, Friday night from burns he received earlier in the day when he fell in a tub of boiling water at his home. Burial services were held Sunday afternoon in the Highland cemetery.

Judge Was Lenient

Cosmo Perpetua of Glasco bought an old car from a neighbor Saturday and started to take it home, without having plates or license. Trooper Reilly placed him under arrest and took him before Justice Walter Webber. In view of all the circumstances the judge was lenient. He imposed fines of $2.50 on each charge and then suspended sentence.

Man Bitten by Dog.

August Bastain of 37 Meadow street reported to the police Saturday that he was bitten in the leg by a dog near his home.

Reports Car Stolen.

John M. Rapp of 664 Broadway reported to the police that his Chevrolet coach parked on lower Hasbrouck avenue had been stolen Saturday evening.

Rowland, president; C. A. Baltz, vice president; James W. Scott, secretary; Ernest R. LeFevre, treasurer, and Emil Bornefeld, assistant treasurer.

All active members of the association 16 years of age or over are urged to be present at 7:30.

Activities This Week at Y. W. C. A.

Week of June 12 to 17 at the Y. W. C. A.:

Monday evening at 8 o'clock the board of directors will hold its regular June meeting. This will be an important meeting as it will be the last board session before the fall meeting on September 11. All members are urged to attend.

On Wednesday the girls of the Business Girls Club will be entertained at the home of Miss Ellen Van Slyke on Marius street, in an outdoor picnic supper. Girls who expect to attend are urged to sign up at the Y. W. by Tuesday evening. In case of rain, the picnic will be held in the gym.

The Blue Bird Club will enjoy a picnic outing this week. On Tuesday the 10 and 11 year old girls will meet at the Y. W. at 4 o'clock. Each girl should bring her own picnic supper. On Saturday morning the 8 and 9 year old Blue Birds will have a picnic, each girl also bringing her own picnic lunch. In case of rain, the picnics will be held in the gym.

Tennis instruction will be continued as per schedule. Beginners are urged to attend on Tuesday evening if possible. The gym will be open to practice all through the week.

The Cheerio Club will meet on Thursday afternoon and will have an important business meeting.

"Charms" of Emeralds Now Appeal to the Eyesight

As far back as 1650 B. C., emeralds were mined by the ancients who found them worth a "king's ransom" among the Old world aristocrats. Alexander the Great is said to have employed an army of miners to unearth emeralds for his treasure chests. Cleopatra owned fabulous emerald mines in upper Egypt. The most precious jewels in possession of the rich Persian Shahs, the Indian Maharajas, the Russian tzars, the Turkish sultans and, in modern times, of the kings and queens of the European courts, were emeralds.

Not only were emeralds regarded as the rarest and most beauteous of gems, but ancient and medieval beliefs ascribed to emeralds certain "charms" which protected and benefited the wearer. Emeralds were reputed to drive away evil spirits. They were believed to aid the feminine wearer during the rigors of childbirth. They "cured" common complaints. The only surviving belief of this character is that emeralds are easy on the eyesight, due to their green color.

Weight of Brain

The weight of the brain appears to be no indication of the intelligence of the individual. The average weight of the male brain is 48 ounces. There have been cases, some of great men and some of imbeciles, of brains weighing over 60 ounces. A table given in "Five Thousand Facts and Fancies" shows the following average brain weights: Scotch, 50 ounces; Germans, 49.6; English, 49.5; French, 47.9; Zulu, 47.5; Chinese, 47.2; Pawnee, 47.1; Italian, 46.9; Hindoo, 45.1; Gypsies, 44.8; Bushmen, 44.6; Eskimo, 43.9. In capacity of brain-case, the Anglo-Saxon and German are rated highest. As a rule, large individuals have large brains and small individuals small brains, but a small brain is no more necessarily handicapped than a small hand or a small foot. The relative weights of the brain and body are about the same in the two sexes.

Corn Cribs in Mexico

Corn cribs in the neighborhood of Oaxaca and Morelos, Mexico, must be of the feminine gender because they wear ruffled grass petticoats. Once common enough, this type of granary is a comparatively rare sight in the hot country. The peon farmer has taken a tip from his enlightened brethren in Iowa and Nebraska, where the ultra-scientific corn crib is built on stilts covered with upside-down tin cans to keep out rodents. In fact, only one consideration keeps the less practical but more beauteous type of crib from being entirely superseded. In southern Mexico, corn is plentiful but tin cans are scarce as hotels with running hot water.—Detroit News.

Forerunner of Sunday School

The Jews established schools to supplement their synagogues as far back as 170 B. C. This may be called the forerunner of the present-day Sunday school. The first known in this country was founded at Plymouth, Mass., in 1669.

UNPARALLED HEAT WAVE, SAY OLD TIME RESIDENTS

West Shokan, June 12—The recent days of withering heat old time residents say is unparalled for early June. Thursday and Friday certainly were scorchers for man and beast, coming on as it did a bit unexpectedly. Thermometers lingered on at 100 degrees or better after the sun had passed along afternoons to the shady side. Preceded by the daily showers and tolerable warm weather growing crops responded like magic when the heat was turned on. The cooler week-end was generally appreciated.

GARDEN CLUB WILL HAVE FLOWER EXHIBIT

The Ulster Garden Club will have an exhibition of flowers in artistic arrangement, including perennials, annuals, roses, lilies, etc., on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week in Burgevin's on the corner of Fair and Main streets.

Battery A Will Ride Saturday

Next Saturday, Battery A of the First Battalion, 156th Field Artillery, will ride on horseback to Glenford, to acquaint the new members of the battery with some of the work to be taken up in the annual field training period at Pine Camp this summer and for a social time.

The National Guardsmen with about 50 horses will be under command of Lieutenant James P. Byrne, who planned the ride, and will leave Kingston about 1 o'clock in the afternoon. They expect to arrive at Glenford about 4 o'clock. The battery cooks will prepare supper. Tents will be taken for sleeping. These and other equipment will be carted in motor trucks.

Lieutenant Byrne, who recently signed eight recruits, has openings for four more in his battery. Any young man interested can procure information by seeing him or Lieutenant Ernest Steuding, recruiting officer. Details may be procured by 'phoning 3867-R.

Fred Gronemeyer of the Lyman T. Schoonmaker contracting firm, which built the armory, joined the 156th last year and now is a second lieutenant, having received his commission last week. Ernest Steuding, a member of the National Guard for a number of years, has been advanced from a second to first lieutenant.

THREE STALWARTS OF THE TOWN OF OLIVE DEAD

West Shokan, June 12.—Many old-time Olive friends and former neighbors attended the funeral of the venerable Joseph S. Hill held Friday afternoon at his home in Kingston. Still others were present at the interment following in Tongore cemetery. Within the space of but a few weeks three of the town's oldest and stalwart landmarks have died, Jacob A. Crispell, 90, Zadoc Barringer, 83, and Mr. Hill, 84. The two latter occurring on the same day, June 6. Within their lifetimes the greatest and most revolutionary advancement in the world's history have taken place. Even in their own town of Olive they have witnessed the changes from the early stage coach and bustling tanning and lumbering days, the hectic times of the Civil War, the building of the Rondout and Oswego railroad through Olive in 1870 and 1871, the telegraph and later telephone service, the Ashokan reservoir construction, daily bus lines and the evolution from candle illumination to a network of electric light lines.

NEW POOL ON PLANK ROAD OPENED SUNDAY

Van's swimming pool on the Plank Road, across the Washington avenue viaduct, opened Sunday. Hours of bathing are from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

The pool is two feet deep at one end and slopes to eight feet at the other. In the center is a diving board. Water is furnished by an artesian well, regulated to keep a fresh flow running into the pool all the time.

The bath houses have individual compartments; also a shower and foot bath.

Special lighting effects are said to make the pool delightful for night bathing.

Parking space for many cars is provided near the pool.

Tuesday Night Dances.

Alvin Black and his High-Hatters will furnish music for the dances which are being given this season every Tuesday evening at the Ole Red Barn, Ashokan, under the management of Earl Dean. The opening dance of the season attracted a large number of people.

REGULAR MEETING OF CLINTONDALE GRANGE

Clintondale, June 12.—The regular meeting of Clintondale Grange was held Monday evening in the Grange Hall with Master Francis Gaffney, Sr., presiding. During the business meeting the Log Cabin travelogue was presented to the Clintondale Grange by the members of the Highland Grange, who gave a very interesting as well as entertaining drill. After the presentation was made and the business completed a lecturer's hour in charge of Mrs. Irvin Mears, lecturer of Highland Grange. The first number on the program was a musical selection by the DuBois Duo, accompanied by Mrs. Blakeley of Highland at the piano. One of the DuBois brothers played a banjo while the other played the violin. An encore was also played. Elmer Randall, newspaper man of Highland, gave a very interesting talk on current happenings of the year. The next were two numbers by the DuBois duo with Mrs. Blakely. This was followed by a left hand solo by Bock, played by Miss Thompson of Highland. A one-act play entitled, "Proposing to Jane," was presented. The cast of characters included: Jane, Miss Mary Dowd; mother, Miss Rose Symes; father, Charles Smith, and the Hero Percy, played by Leander DuBois. This was a comedy well staged and acted and greatly enjoyed by all present.

The last number on this interest-program was a talk by Mrs. Charles Jenkins, lecturer of Ulster County Pomona Grange. Mrs. Jenkins gave a very interesting and educational talk on the forming of the Grange and the first years of its life. The first Grange was established in 1873 in Syracuse, N. Y. At the close of this talk the recess given by the Grange was over and the Grange was again called in session. Guests were present from Highland, New Paltz, Rosendale, Lake Katrine, Plattekill and Clintondale. About 100 were in attendance. Short talks were given by Earl Kisor, master of the Highland Grange; J. Wells Weaver, county deputy agent; Mrs. Jenkins of Plattekill, Mrs. Sanders of Rosendale and Francis Gaffney, Sr., master of Clintondale. After which the meeting was closed in due form and delicious refreshments of ice cream, cake and coffee, were served by a committee, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. J. Wells Weaver, John Weaver, Mr. and Mrs. William Denby, Miss Dorothy Weaver, Donald Weaver, Salvatore Scimeca and Miss Grace Van Bram Roberts, assisted by the Graces, Miss Irene Sickler, Mrs. Jonah Rhodes, Mrs. Amy Atkins, assisted by Mrs. Mable Mount, Mrs. Ethel Dingee and Mrs. Hilda Simpson.

The next regular meeting will be held on June 19, in the Grange Hall, when Asbury Grange will be the guests of Clintondale Grange at their annual neighbors' night celebration. The Graces will have charge of the refreshments.

Due to lack of room in the Grange Hall there was no meeting of the Juvenile Grange on Monday evening. The regular meeting will be held this evening in the Grange Hall.

WEEKLY ENTERTAINMENT AT CLINTONDALE SCHOOL

Clintondale, June 12.—The regular weekly entertainment was held on Wednesday morning in the local district school in charge of Walter Craw, principal of the school and teacher of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades. The program was as follows:

Opening song, Juanita, by the entire school.
Comic recitations, Jokes, by Myron Ronk.
Recitation, Portrait of a Neighbor, Grace Houston.
Song, My Bonnie, by the entire school.
Song, The Spindle Song, by Doris Conklin.
Reading, Richard Nace.
Song, by the entire school.
Recitation, Polly, Allen Decker.
Reading, The Bugle Song, by Myron Ronk.

This will be the last entertainment given in the local district school before examinations. Regent examinations will be given the week of June 19, and children from surrounding villages will take their examinations at this school. Mr. Watson will teach next term in place of Walter Craw, who has accepted a position in a school nearer his home town. The children are sorry to know that Mr. Craw is leaving as he is well liked.

On Wednesday evening the classes received many congratulations and well wishes on the production of their plays, "Meddlin'," and "Raspberry Red."

GAME LAW SAYS FROGS ARE PROTECTED QUADRUPEDS

43 St. James St.,
Kingston,
June 11, 1933.

Evidently the public in general does not understand that frogs cannot be taken at night or between sunset and sunrise. Nevertheless the Conservation Law provides this restriction.

Frogs are not fish; they are quadrupeds and come within the definition of wild game, which prohibits them being taken after sunset and before sunrise.

Page eleven of Syllabus of laws relating to Fish & Game gives the open season for frogs.

Page twenty-eight, last paragraph of the same Syllabus, states the manner in which game may be taken.

B. M. CASTLE,

TO BREAK GROUND SOON FOR CAMP IN ROCHDALE

West Shokan, June 12—Mr. Kramer of Malby Hollow in charge of the preliminary work of establishing the state conservation camp in Rochdale, states that ground will be broken shortly with a force of 20 or more men, at $1.00 a day and found. Not a bad offer at all by the good state of New York, when so many are in need of employment.

Mr. Kramer is well known in this section as he was in charge of the state work going on here a few years ago.
